

Arabic Minor

Overview

The Minor in Arabic, which is offered by the Department of Asian and Middle Eastern Languages and Studies, emphasizes language study while also recognizing the importance of learning about areas of the world where Arabic is spoken through work in fields such as literature, history, anthropology and religion. This program will be of particular use to students interested in careers in education, business, government or other professions where Arabic language proficiency is important.

The minor requires a minimum of three Arabic language courses and three specified content courses. A minimum grade of C- must be earned in all courses used for the minor. Students who place out of one or more Arabic language courses must replace those requirements with electives approved by their Arabic faculty advisor.

Minors are awarded only at the time of completion of the bachelor's degree and cannot be awarded either as a stand-alone program of study or after completion of the first bachelor's degree.
