JUDO 0417. Advanced Contracts: UCC and Interpretation. 3 Credit Hours.
This course focuses on sophisticated commercial problems and cases, usually based on Article 2 (the Sales article) of the Uniform Commercial Code and occasionally on the Convention on the International Sales of Goods. A primary emphasis is on methods for interpreting contract provisions and the underlying statutory provisions, usually during the performance phase of contracts. The problems confronted in the course are somewhat broader than those arising in the Sales course. In addition, they often arise in transactional and counseling settings and the material lends itself to considering the role of lawyers in these situations, as distinguished from their roles as litigators. Both this and the Sales course are the easiest transition from the Contracts course in first year. Article 2 of the UCC is a subject covered by the bar exam.

JUDO 0421. Spanish for Lawyers. 2 Credit Hours.
The purpose of this course is to give the Spanish speaking lawyer or law student a brief introduction to, and the ability to increase their familiarity with, legal terms in Spanish. Students will be exposed to these terms in the context of the substantive civil law in which they are utilized. This course will be conducted in the following manner. A legal document, brief article or other reading will be posted on Blackboard one week prior to our meeting. These legal documents or articles will focus on different areas of the law as practiced in Latin America. Students will be expected to read and review each weekly document prior to our meeting, where we will discuss the assignment in Spanish. This course will be graded on a Pass/Fail basis. The evaluation will be based on two to three writing assignments, which will involve either the drafting of a legal document in Spanish or the translation of a document in Spanish into English. NOTE: Students must be able to speak and read Spanish as class meetings will be conducted exclusively in Spanish.

JUDO 0460. Trial Advocacy I. 2 Credit Hours.
Trial Advocacy I is part of the Integrated Trial Advocacy Program (ITAP), a two semester, ten credit course package. ITAP combines Evidence, Civil Procedure II and trial advocacy skills. Taken in the fall along with Evidence and coupled with the spring courses of Civil Procedure II and Trial Advocacy II, Trial Ad I introduces the student to the basic skills of analyzing a trial file, examining witnesses, making and meeting objections and offers of proof, introducing exhibits, and delivering opening statements and closing arguments through a "learning by doing" or student performance format. Trial Ad I has a decidedly criminal trial advocacy orientation. The course culminates with students trying a mock criminal jury trial. Particular attention is given to the interplay between the law of evidence and the art of trial advocacy.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

JUDO 0462. Transactional Practice I. 2 Credit Hours.
This course is part of an innovative course package entitled "Integrated Transactional Practice" which combines Trusts and Estates, Professional Responsibility and transactional skills, such as interviewing, negotiation, counseling and drafting into a two-semester, ten-credit sequence. The course centers around six realistic client files which involve one family (except for a single pro bono matter). The simulation course work with these clients occurs in the two skills sections, of which Transactional Practice I is part. This includes counseling the mother regarding the disposition of shares of a family business under her will, negotiating and selling a piece of property from an estate, and selling the entire family business. Along the way, one of the children gets married and the mother seeks to persuade him to negotiate a prenuptial agreement, and later the son organizes a charitable business and has to face an IRS agent in an examination of organizational activities.

JUDO 0467. International Intellectual Property. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Once thought of as a "niche" course taught in a few law schools, international intellectual property is rapidly becoming a staple of law school's intellectual property curriculum. International Intellectual Property is in many ways similar to, and in many ways different than, the United States' intellectual property law, which students study in an Introduction course. International intellectual property is similar because of the same intellectual property regimes, namely, copyrights, trademarks, patents, and trade secrets. Students will therefore see many of the same underlying principles and theories seen in the U.S. intellectual property course. This is not unexpected as other countries' intellectual property laws are similar to if not based on the U.S. laws. On the other hand, international intellectual property law is different because many more countries' intellectual property laws are not based on U.S. intellectual property law and are, indeed, vastly different than U.S. law. This is, in many ways, the fascinating part of international intellectual property law. This aspect involves not only understanding, but truly appreciating why each country has different laws. Each country has different histories, traditions, levels of economic and technological development, and has very different goals and abilities. We will explore these differences and what they mean for attempting to harmonize global intellectual property. Even more so than as with domestic intellectual property, international intellectual property law raises difficult questions about the relationship between citizens and government in a democracy; how we go about promoting progress and encouraging economic and technological progress; and the role of the courts and legislatures in determining who decides these issues.

JUDO 0477. Advocacy in Transactional Lawyering. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course offers advocacy techniques for those who anticipate practice in a non-litigation setting. Students work with the basic principles of advocacy that apply in various situations likely to be encountered in transactional and hybrid practice settings. Elements include theory and psychology of persuasion; rhetoric and argument devices, and communication skills. The course offers some exposure to the basics of questioning techniques and short arguments on the premise that non-litigators will need to appear in administrative settings (hearings and group presentations). The negotiation process is analyzed, with emphasis on advocacy techniques that can be employed along the way. There are readings, lectures, learning-by doing exercises, and review of videotapes. Grading is based on an accumulation of performance results and written submissions. The lawyering situations to be addressed in this course include: advising the client, and persuading why a particular course of action is in the client's best interests; negotiation - planning and use of techniques in the stages of the process; supporting a work product - making the oral presentation of an assignment; building cooperation in work groups - using brainstorming and other leadership techniques; marketing - basic theory/psychology of "selling", using practice anecdotes to understand storytelling technique; essentials of advocacy at administrative hearings; crossover - common characteristics of effective written and oral advocacy.

JUDO 0479. Appellate Advocacy. 2 Credit Hours.
The purpose of this course is to provide guidance to students concerning how to handle an appeal in the federal and state courts on a practical level. Toward that end, the class will attend two or three sessions of oral arguments at the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, the Superior Court of Pennsylvania and/or the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania. We will meet with judges of those courts who will hopefully attend our classes and provide illumination as to what we have observed in court. Experienced appellate advocates will appear as guest lecturers to provide us with the benefit of their experience and to share their knowledge and skills with the class. The instructor will provide the latest updates in appellate law and practice on a weekly basis. The class will use Judge Ruggiero Aldisert's leading text in this field, "Winning on Appeal," and there will be supplemental readings pertinent to this topic. There will be no written examination; however, the class will be provided with a transcript of a real trial and will be required to submit an appellate brief and thereafter to argue the case as if they were before an appellate court. Students will be judged on classroom participation, the written brief and those oral arguments.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 0480. Securities Litigation and Enforcement. 3 Credit Hours.
This course surveys a broad range of materials concerning theoretical and practical aspects of complex federal securities litigation and enforcement. It addresses actions and issues as they are likely to arise in actual securities litigation, such as class action securities fraud lawsuits, insider trading litigation, Securities Exchange Commission administrative proceedings and Department of Justice criminal prosecutions. This course is designed to be accessible without any prior familiarity of securities regulations, however, it does analyze conceptual subtleties, doctrinal nuances and practical issues that students are unlikely to have previously encountered in their securities regulations course. Finally, this course also provides all of the necessary financial economics background for securities litigation and enforcement in terms of an overview of capital markets efficiency and behavioral finance, which applies insights of empirical and experimental research in psychology and neuroscience to understand actual financial economic behavior.

JUDO 0485. Drug Products Liability. 2 Credit Hours.
This course develops an understanding the interrelationship between drug products liability, professional malpractice, and hospital negligence. This course will explore the evolution of therapeutic drugs and devices from the manufacturer's submission of the Application to the FDA through the approval of the Application to the marketing and prescription. The course will then explore the role of the FDA, pharmacists, physicians, and hospitals in the delivery of therapeutic drugs and devices to the consumer, and their respective obligations to the consumer. In that regard, this course will examine the federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetics Act, as well as many other complex legal and ethical theories applicable to drug and medical devices manufacturers, pharmacists, physicians, and hospitals in their therapeutic drug and devices interactions with the consumer. Currently publicized incidents such as problems with the Jesse Gelsinger gene therapy at the University of Pennsylvania, and others will be dissected within the context of both products liability and professional malpractice law.

JUDO 0494. Advising the Multinational Company on Global Legal Issues. 2 or 3 Credit Hours.
This interactive and participatory course is intended to provide a survey of the types of issues confronting lawyers, and particularly in-house lawyers, who advise multinational corporations on a worldwide basis. The areas to be discussed include topics that will cross corporate law, tax law, labor and employment law, employee benefits, litigation and corporate compliance. Real life examples will be used to illustrate the complicated nature yet importance of this type of practice. Further, in addition to the more substantive legal topics to be covered, the course will also be interspersed with practice tips, jurisdictional practice highlights and ethical considerations for the multinational practitioner. The success of the course depends highly on each class member coming to class prepared, and more important, on each class member participating in our discussions. Because of this, class participation will account for 30% of the final grade. The remaining 70% of a student's grade will be based on a final paper and presentation (weighted equally). Note: This course does not satisfy the graduation writing requirement.

JUDO 0496. Legal, Professional and Business Aspects of Law Practice. 2 Credit Hours.
This course focuses on the economics, ethics and practice management aspect of the law. It will introduce students to "life in a law firm" through the following concepts: Economics of Law Practice, Time Management, Client Development, Ethics of Practice. Each of these four general areas will receive roughly equal treatment during the course. In addition, the ethics component will overlay the other three areas in order to describe how the Rules of Professional Conduct govern the provision of legal services. Class sessions will include guest presenters who will discuss issues within their areas of expertise and work with students on real-world problems. Students will work in "law firms" of several students and will develop their own structure and organization, two-year financial projections, staffing patterns, administrative and management plans, practice systems, and marketing and business development strategies and tactics. Students will complete projects based on challenges that today's law firms and law departments face and present their projects to the entire class for discussion and critique. Class size will be limited.

JUDO 0498. Election Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Elections in the United States are largely governed by state law and, in a few instances, local law. However, there is a body of federal law, deriving from the Constitution and a number of federal statutes, that establishes rule rules for the conduct of elections. It is not possible, nor is it likely to be helpful, to review the vast array of state and local laws that govern most of the American electoral system. This course is therefore largely devoted to the federal law aspects that create the sometimes dense, sometimes porous framework for the conduct of American elections. Special attention is given to the constitutional aspects of federal election law as defined by the Supreme Court and, occasionally, by lower courts; but in several sections of the course there is attention to federal statutes and regulations. At a conceptual level, the course also inquires about the nature of representation and what inferences for election law might be drawn from different concepts of representation.

JUDO 0502. Criminal Law II. 3 Credit Hours.
This course examines several aspects of substantive criminal law not covered extensively in Criminal Law I. Some of these subjects involve the interplay of substantive criminal law with constitutional issues, with evidentiary issues, and with procedural concerns -- all of which can better be brought to bear in an advanced course. Possible topics includes: limitations on what conduct should be criminalized; proportionality and legality limits; group criminality (advanced concepts involving corporate liability and conspiracy); exculpatory defenses based on mental illness and more recently developed defenses; entrapment; and an extensive examination of selected crimes such as rape and the theft related offenses.

JUDO 0503. Criminal Appellate Procedure. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
The major focus of this course is on the procedures and rights involved in the appeal of a criminal case. (Many of these procedures are similar to those in civil cases.) Attention is given to understanding the implication of appellate rules for the trial of a case. The role of the appellate courts, as well as of appellate attorneys, is also examined. That portion of the course dealing with prosecutor appeals affords an opportunity for an extensive examination of important aspects of double jeopardy. Some brief attention also may be given to various forms of "collateral attack" litigation and post-verdict trial" court motions.

JUDO 0508. Corporations. 3 Credit Hours.
This course is an introduction to the law and policy governing corporations. Corporations are legally created entities designed to facilitate accumulation of large amounts of capital (that is money and other things of value). They do so primarily by offering investors the opportunity of a financial return on their investment, without the requirement to undertake financial risk (above the amount invested) or responsibility for managing the enterprise. Thus, corporations permit passive investment and the separation of ownership and control. Most of the law governing corporations are designed to regulate the relationships between owners (equity investors) and managers and to provide rules to govern managers in the exercise of power over actions of the company.

JUDO 0530. Bankruptcy. 3 Credit Hours.
Our basic Bankruptcy course is designed to give you a good grounding in the Bankruptcy Code and the associated law governing the enforcement of civil judgments. The course focuses on personal (rather than business) bankruptcy. It deals with the structure of the Bankruptcy Code and the costs and benefits the process represents to those who become involved with it either as debtors or as creditors. This simpler context of personal bankruptcy will allow you to absorb complex policy issues more readily than would an earlier foray into the bankruptcy of businesses. Business bankruptcy, by itself, is sufficiently complex to support its own course (Chapter 11 Reorganization) for students already versed in basic bankruptcy and corporate law.

JUDO 0547. Introduction to Intellectual Property. 3 Credit Hours.
This course will cover the broad outlines of the four major branches of intellectual property law: patent, copyright, trademark, and trade secret law. Time permitting; the course also will look at the emerging doctrine of "misappropriation" as applied to intellectual property. The course will look generally at why (and how) intellectual property law differs from the law governing real property or tangible personal property, as well as at the special features of each of these sub-fields of intellectual property law. The course should provide a helpful overview of this area of the law for students who do not plan to specialize in intellectual property, as well as providing those who plan to go on to more detailed study of, and practice in, this area with an introductory exposure to the kinds of problems that are common to all intellectual property disciplines.

JUDO 0551. Trademarks and Unfair Competition. 2 Credit Hours.
Addressing both theoretical and practical issues, this course combines a traditional law school examination of common law and statutory principles with a "real world" application of those principles as a practitioner sees them. The principles include unfair competition topics such as the right of publicity, misappropriation of trade values and trade secrets, regulation of false and deceptive advertising, and interference with contract and trade relations. The principles focus, however, on trademark law topics such as the creation and maintenance of trademark rights, infringement of trademark rights and dilution, special defenses and limitations, and remedies. These topics are examined in light of modern advertising and marketing practices, including special issues raised by the Internet and international considerations. Among the more practical aspects covered are the federal trademark registration process, proceedings before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and highlights of trademark litigation in the courts.

JUDO 0552. Patent Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course provides an extended introduction to United States patent law. Topics covered include the patenting process, patent-eligible subject matter, patent validity requirements, patent infringement, and the nature of rights secured by a patent. The course also briefly examines trade secret law, and discusses the relationship between, and the relative advantages and disadvantages of, patent and trade secret law for protecting intellectual property rights in inventions and discoveries. This course will provide a broad overview of the law and policy of the U.S. patent system. Topics to be covered include the nature of patentable subject matter, the standards for assessing patent validity (novelty, utility, and non-obviousness), Patent Office procedures, infringement and the doctrine of equivalents, and remedies for patent infringement.

JUDO 0631. Public Health Law. 2 Credit Hours.
This course surveys the broad terrain of law and the public's health. We will cover both the "laws on the books" and the problems of actually implementing these laws in the often highly politicized and culturally sensitive context of health and behavior. Topics include the basic powers, duties and limitations of state health authorities in the United States; the epidemiological influence of law on health and health behavior; the global system of health governance; and the application of a human rights framework to health issues. Health topic areas covered include communicable diseases (HIV, SARS, emerging infections), tobacco, substance abuse, chronic diseases and infections. We will also devote considerable time to reading about and discussing how health is "socially constructed" and how stigma, economic self-interest and other cultural responses to disease complicate efforts to promote public health.

JUDO 0654. Business Immigration Law. 1 to 4 Credit Hour.
There is little or no doubt that much of the US economy is (and always has been) powered by foreign workers. Although the demand for certain types of workers may vary, we as a nation will need foreign nationals to fill important gaps in our economy. This course will examine the different ways US employers can hire workers from outside of the United States, as well as the options for foreign employers investing in or trading with the United States. It will also cover some of the ways in which particularly well-qualified foreign citizens can enter the United States without a sponsoring employer. We will also review some of the obligations the hiring of non-citizen workers places on employers, and the unique legal considerations in recruiting, hiring, and promoting foreign nationals. This course will provide a brief introduction to some of these issues, providing students with the information necessary to spot them before they become problems.

JUDO 0666. E-Discovery: Preservation through Presentation in the Digital Age. 2 Credit Hours.
With computers and e-mail dominating business and personal life, the nature of civil discovery has changed. Lawyers need to know how to request, identify, preserve, collect, process, review and produce digital information, in all its myriad of forms (from e-mail and Excel to social media and the "Cloud"). While this does not require a technical degree, there are significant pitfalls that lawyers can learn to avoid and better represent their clients. This class is designed to teach law students about the nuances of the quickly evolving world of e-discovery and provide practical help so that students can be immediately valuable to their employers and clients.

JUDO 0668. Advertising and Marketing Law. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
Businesses and other brand owners are constantly taking steps to market and advertise their products and services in ways that reach the targeted consumers and/or end users. Whether the platforms are television, radio, social media, apps, blogs, search engine advertising or highway billboards, many of the legal issues are the same. This course explores some of the major issues that businesses and other entities must consider when advertising and marketing products and services to the public. The course includes topics on false and deceptive advertising, defamation and other business torts, negative and gripe content, trademarks and copyrights, right of publicity, privacy, transmission tools (e.g., email, text messaging), promotions, and other relevant topics. The course takes a practical approach to these and other topics, and class discussions focus on current events and examples, to the extent feasible, to better apply the legal issues.

JUDO 0669. Advanced Trial Advocacy (Speech Making). 3 Credit Hours.
This performance based course will explore the art of speechmaking by focusing on the elements of what constitutes clear and persuasive speech in a legal context. It will consider the use of speechmaking in a variety of contexts that arise in legal practice (e.g., with individual clients and client boards, in negotiations and settlements, before judges, arbitrators, and mediators). Particular attention will be paid to the use of speeches in litigation. Principles of persuasion will be identified and analyzed in how they advance the three purposes of a speech: to entertain; to inform; and to persuade. Students will focus on preparing, organizing, drafting, using exhibits, quoting witnesses, explaining burdens of proof, incorporating judicial instructions, calling opponents on mistakes and misstatements, avoiding impermissible arguments and actual speech delivery.

JUDO 0670. Tax Practicum. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course is open only to students who have had at least one course in Taxation and who have secured the consent of a member of the Tax Faculty. The specifics of the course will be tailored to the student's interests and proposed project but will in all cases involve some aspect of the practice of tax, regular discussion with the Professor, and written work product that requires the merging of tax theory with practice. Examples include but are not limited to, the establishment of a non-profit corporation, including the drafting of appropriate tax exemption documents, unpaid (internship) work at the Office of District Counsel of the Internal Revenue Service or Philadelphia City Solicitor, including drafting of legal memoranda or briefs and regular conferences with the Professor regarding the subject of such memoranda or brief, and including, at the discretion of the Professor, a paper reflecting on the experience or further analyzing a substantive issue arising from the experience. The Professor will be responsible for monitoring the quantity and quality of the work and ensuring that it is commensurate with the credits being awarded. Students may receive either 2 or 3 credits for the course. The course will not satisfy the Law School's Writing Requirement. Grading will be either a letter grade or pass/fail, at the discretion of the Professor and will be determined at the time of registration for the course.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0600.

JUDO 0672. Low Income Taxpayer Policy and Practice. 3 Credit Hours.
This course enables students to see first hand the effect tax policies have on low income taxpayers and then to process that experience through the lens of existing tax policy scholarship and commentary. Students will become certified as a volunteer preparers for VITA, the IRS's Volunteer Income Tax Assistance project, and will volunteer at a VITA center for a minimum of 4 hours per week during the last week of January, all 4 weeks of February, and two weeks in April. Class will meet once per week for 3 weeks in January, at least 2 weeks in February, 2 weeks in March, and 3 weeks in April. Students will be required to keep a journal in which they will describe the salient aspects of the returns they help to prepare. In addition, students will prepare a paper, not to exceed 6,000 words, in which they analyze their experience, taking into account the policy literature examined in class, and make recommendations for change. Students will present the ideas for their papers to the class and will lead a discussion thereof. The paper will not satisfy any portion of the law school's writing requirement. With prior approval, two or more students may choose to collaborate on the final paper, which has the potential to generate deeper, more meaningful papers. The grade for the course will reflect a combination of the quality of the journal postings, participation in class meetings, and the final paper.

JUDO 0680. Presidential Leadership and Individual Rights. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
Presidents are especially well placed to make constitutional law within their sphere of action, as well as to influence the development of rights in others' spheres of influence. In exposing students to writings from political science, history, law, and sociology, this interdisciplinary course has several objectives. First, students will examine the opportunities available to modern presidents to advance or erode constitutional, statutory, and human rights. Second, students will explore the social conditions - within bureaucracies and society as a whole - that must prevail for an administration to make the transformation of existing rights a priority. Third, taking on the perspective of an executive branch actor, students will assess the tactics available when a president is interested in taking action on a matter implicating individual rights: when is each strategy most tempting, what are the historical or legal precedents for each tactic, how effective is it, and so on.

JUDO 0681. Public Advocacy for Social Change. 1 Credit Hour.
In this 4-day intensive course, students will work intensively in teams to design and build an effective public advocacy campaign with multi-faceted deliverables. Among other things, students will identify a social problem, convince others to care about it in both written and oral form and develop a set of solutions to it. Students will identify stakeholders, targets, messages, and counter-arguments; testing ways to reach key audiences and measuring your success. Students will learn how to recognize effective marketing strategies; select a name for a campaign and build a brand that creates an emotional connection with target audience. Students will learn the craft of storytelling and how it can be leveraged to build a campaign in a fun and compelling way.

JUDO 0691. International Financial Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This course will focus primarily on the legal aspects of international capital markets but will also include an introduction to the basics of project finance. No prior knowledge of finance is required. It will begin with a general overview of the architecture of the international finance system and some basic concepts in legal finance. We will then review three types of international business transactions; (i) loans; (ii) bond issues; and (iii) derivatives. As part of that review, we will examine the legal relationships and legal documentation necessary to effect such transactions and the kinds of legal issues (such as accountability for disclosure of accurate information, the risk of insolvency, the risk of asset freezes and related conflicts of laws) that commonly arise. Towards the end of the course, we will take a brief look at the legal aspects of project finance and evolving legal issues regarding carbon finance. Final class grades will be based on an exam, a mid-term team presentation and class participation. Class attendance is mandatory.

JUDO 0692. Post-Conviction Remedies. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
The criminal appeals process provides prisoners the right to challenge their convictions in both state collateral and federal habeas corpus proceedings. This course introduces students to this important and rapidly changing post-conviction practice. We will examine what state-sentenced inmates must do in state court to preserve their right to pursue federal habeas relief before the federal district courts and courts of appeals under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 as well as address the habeas procedures set forth at 28 U.S.C. § 2255 available to federally-sentenced inmates. Students should have the opportunity to attend a state post-conviction evidentiary hearing and/or a federal habeas hearing and to meet with United States Magistrate Judges, who submit recommendations to United States District Court judges on how habeas corpus matters should be resolved. Students will learn about the types of claims that are successful in post-conviction, the complex interplay between state and federal proceedings, and how to overcome the many roadblocks the law has erected to bar federal court consideration of federal constitutional violations.

JUDO 0695. Renewable Energy Law, Regulation and Policy. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
The course will cover solar and wind generation technologies and the issues involved in developing, siting, and integrating them into the U.S. electricity grid. The course will review the major renewable energy laws and regulations designed to promote renewable generation resources, including federal tax subsidies, state renewable portfolio standards, the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 and net metering. The class will consider the intermittent character of wind and solar resources, and the policy and legal aspects of possible ways to overcome this phenomenon. In light of the location constraints of wind resources, key regulatory issues affecting transmission access will also be addressed. Turning to the transportation sector, the course will consider vehicle electrification (widespread market integration of electric vehicles) as a strategy to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

JUDO 0780. Temple Summer Professional Experience Curriculum. 1 to 5 Credit Hour.
Students will participate in an experiential learning program. An externship will be combined with a course of study designed to examine the role a lawyer has in society; obligations to clients, supervisors, public and self; definitions of success; moral judgment; and the formation of professional identity.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 0781. Social Justice Lawyering Clinic. 1 to 6 Credit Hour.
Students will engage in the multifaceted practice of social justice advocacy through hands-on experience. Using a hybrid advocacy model, students provide direct individual client representation and work on related advocacy projects that address systemic issues. This work will be team-based and collaborative, and often involve nonprofit legal providers and community-based organizations. Students are expected to participate in a weekly team meeting with their faculty supervisor as well as learn about the substantive and procedural law that is applicable to their cases and projects. This course will focus on one or more particular social justice issues each semester.

JUDO 0785. Community Lawyering: Temple Legal Aid Office. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
Through community lawyering projects, this internal clinic at Temple's Legal Aid Office allows you to develop the legal skills you will need to represent clients in many areas of practice. As a legal intern, you will be placed in the primary lawyer role under the direct supervision of the professor who will supervise each aspect of the work you do. It is designed to be diagnostic--you will practice skills you need to lawyer and reflect with the professor at every step on how to practice well. Some skills you will develop include interviewing and counselling, goal defining with clients, legal analysis, legal research and writing, and oral advocacy. You will handle some litigation type matters, like administrative hearings before Administrative Law Judges to help people get disability benefits, and transactional ones, like drafting powers of attorney and wills. The present client base has a health law focus and includes people with physical disabilities and those with severe illnesses, like HIV and cancer. Many of the community sites focus on delivering medical and social services to people with these disabilities and illnesses.

JUDO 0786. Big Tech and The Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will cover fundamental legal and practical issues concerning large technology companies, including issues relating to corporate governance, privacy, competition, and social impact. The course is designed to foster the acquisition of substantive legal knowledge and develop practical legal skills in the context of learning about core legal issues implicated by large technology companies.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0508.

JUDO 0788. Temple Law Asylum Project. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
Students will work in conjunction with the Washington Office on Latin America (WOLA), a preeminent research and advocacy nonprofit that works to advance human rights in the Americas, to draft annotated tables of contents tailored to specific asylum claims. This course will begin with a short overview of the asylum process in the United States and a breakdown of the legal elements of an asylum claim. Students will then learn various methodologies of country conditions research, and how to evaluate the accuracy and reliability of such research as well as the weight that immigration adjudicators will accord different sources. Working in teams, students will conduct in-depth country conditions research, some in Spanish, and compile that information into annotated tables of contents. Each annotated table of contents will be organized in accordance with a legal argument developed by its respective team. By using the annotated tables of contents as an organizational tool, students will learn how to tailor their facts through substantial, thoughtful, and careful editing to most effectively support their legal arguments. Students will gain a deeper understanding of the sociological, psychological, and ethical issues implicated in their work.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 0791. Sheller Center for Social Justice: The Systemic Justice Clinic. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
A civil rights/social justice clinic focused on the collateral consequences of the criminal legal system will provide students an opportunity to address one of the most pressing concerns in civil rights today, that almost any interaction with the mechanisms of the criminal legal system results in a deprivation of a person's rights, and that these interactions and resultant deprivations fall disproportionately upon racial minorities and the poor. Michelle Alexander's "The New Jim Crow" draws an undeniable line from traditional conceptions of the struggle for civil rights to the modern carceral state and the treatment of incarcerated individuals. Complementing this understanding, James Jacobs has written convincing on the concept of the "eternal criminal record", which can deprive people - even those with merely an arrest record - in the areas of housing, employment, and education for the rest of their lives. This clinic will give students a chance to work in an area of public interest law that is deeply textured, widely relevant, and profoundly rewarding.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

JUDO 0815. Criminal Appellate Procedure. 3 Credit Hours.
The major focus of this writing seminar is on the procedures and rights involved in the appeal of a criminal case. (Many of these procedures are similar to those in civil cases.) Attention is given to understanding the implication of appellate rules for the trial of a case. The role of the appellate courts, as well as of appellate attorneys, is also examined. That portion of the course dealing with prosecutor appeals affords an opportunity for an extensive examination of important aspects of double jeopardy. Some brief attention also may be given to various forms of "collateral attack" litigation and post-verdict trial" court motions. In lieu of an examination, students taking this course as a writing seminar will research and write a series of papers. Study of the course materials and participation in classes is also part of the process.

JUDO 0822. Current Issues in Family Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar will be a small but ambitious step toward initiating a transactional' family law program. The course will combine several basic substantive family law issues with several basic professional responsibility issues with several basic skill-based exercises. There will be two or three basic "problems". Each problem requires integrating" substantive law with the rules of professional responsibility. Each problem requires exercising other basic lawyering skills, for example, client interviewing, intake processing, opponent attorney contact, negotiation, and client relations. The skill-based exercises for example, letters to clients, formalized agreements. As the course is currently planned, there may be a final' paper requesting students to tie the other experiences together. As currently imagined, the course is very hands-on', relying on simulations to stimulate discussions and development.

JUDO 0926. Transactional Skills Workshop. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar will introduce students to the practice of business transactions law. Business transactions can, of course, take many forms, but most commonly involve either acquisitions or financings. "These are fancy words for "purchases" and "investments," respectively. Other transactions" include joint ventures, product development agreements, franchise agreements, licenses, and so on. This course is organized around two transactions: (i) the formation (financing) of an imaginary high-tech venture, and (ii) an asset purchase by that venture of another business. In addition to the skills component, students will be "expected to draft documents, maintain a "strategy" "journal," and complete several written assignments."

JUDO 0932. Criminal Procedure II. 3 Credit Hours.
Criminal Procedure II covers the main pretrial stages of criminal proceedings in felony cases, from pre-arrest to trial: prosecution decision whether to prosecute; bail and other forms of pretrial release; preliminary hearings; indicting and investigating grand jury proceedings; joinder and severance of defendants and offenses for trial; speedy trial, prompt commencement of proceedings, prompt trial statutes and rules; pretrial discovery; prosecution disclosure and preservation of exculpatory evidence; defense obligations not to conceal inculpatory evidence; and guilty pleas proceedings, including plea bargaining. The course deals with more "practical" procedure than Criminal Procedure I; the constitutional provisions and appellate decisions. The class is conducted predominately through role-play simulations, but also uses more traditional case analysis (mainly U.S. Supreme Court cases) and problem solving. In the simulations, students are assigned to conduct hearings, argue motions, etc., serving as judges, attorneys and witnesses. Some of the students not assigned to perform the simulation are assigned to write on the problem.

JUDO 0954. Public Health Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar surveys the broad terrain of law and the public's health. We will cover both the "laws on the books" and the problems of actually implementing these laws in the often highly politicized and culturally sensitive context of health and behavior. Topics include the basic powers, duties and limitations of state health authorities in the United States; the epidemiological influence of law on health and health behavior; the global system of health governance; and the application of a human rights framework to health issues. Health topic areas covered include communicable diseases (HIV, SARS, emerging infections), tobacco, substance abuse, chronic diseases and infections. We will also devote considerable time to reading about and discussing how health is "socially constructed" and how stigma, economic self-interest and other cultural responses to disease complicate efforts to promote public health.

JUDO 0961. Ethical Perspectives on the Practice of Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This course challenges the view that a lawyer is merely an instrument for achieving his or her client's ends and then examines the relationship between professional roles and ordinary morality. We ask whether the lawyer must take personal moral responsibility for (a) the quality of his or her relationship with the client, (b) the outcome of the cases s/he handles, and (c) the tactics and the strategies used to achieve the outcome. This is a serial paper writing seminar. Also, this course is not a substitute for Professional Responsibility and may be taken before or after that required course.

JUDO 0995. Family Law: Theory, Policy and Practice. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar is designed to investigate the available theories for facilitating "family transition" through the process of separation or divorce and evaluate the extent to which the current practice by lawyers, courts, and related professionals facilitates or undermines successful transitions. There will be a particular focus on families with children and low income or moderate income families, and will include judicial as well as alternative dispute resolution techniques. Students will consider both economic issues following separation and divorce as well as child custody issues. Students will be required to work in teams to develop a research plan and produce individual scholarly written work that encompasses the following areas of research: 1) Identifying legal, psychological, and sociological theories concerning family transition that focus on reducing risks for all family members associated with separation and divorce, 2) "Real world" research that maps and evaluates the resources available to separating and divorcing families, including legal, mental health, court, and alternative dispute resolution procedures in the five county Southeastern Pennsylvania area, 3) Identification of key policymakers that would be in a position to implement policy proposals. Students will be encouraged to share their research findings with key policymakers.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0568, JUDO 0445, or JUDO 0455)

JUDO 0996. Post-Conflict and Transitional Justice. 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar will explore the legal, moral, social, and political questions that face societies emerging from periods of large-scale human rights abuses. We will study the various strategies that societies have adopted in recent history to recover from war, ethnic conflict, apartheid, and authoritarian rule. Such strategies include prosecutions, truth commissions, reparation programs, institutional reforms, and reconciliation programs. Each student will engage in a substantial research project that describes and analyzes a specific case or problem in transitional justice and explores how that case or problem fits into the larger themes examined in the course. Students will present their research to the class and will be responsible for reading and reacting to the work of their classmates.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 0997. International Health Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar examines the many treaties, institutions and customs that govern how health is protected and promoted in the international system. Specific topics will include communicable disease control (e.g., SARS), chronic disease control (Framework Convention on Tobacco Control), international human rights and health, access to medicines (e.g., the TRIPS Agreement), the institutional structure of global health governance (World Health Organization, Global AIDS Fund), and health-related business regulation.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 0998. Current Issues in Civil Rights Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar covers the federal regime for protection of civil rights, with a particular focus on (1) emerging or unresolved issues in civil rights law and (2) the broader historical and sociological background underlying federal civil rights statutes and doctrines. Reading assignments (subject to change) will cover Critical Race Theory; the debate over affirmative action; Titles VI and IX (prohibiting discrimination based on race/ethnic origin and gender in programs receiving federal funds, respectively); sexual orientation; and racial profiling.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0404.

JUDO 0999. Anatomy for Litigators. 3 Credit Hours.
This course explores the medical/legal issues related to personal injury claims. In addition to discussing human anatomy from a litigator's perspective, the course will examine issues related to theories of liability and defense, expert testimony, diagnostic tests, medical records, and HIPAA.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1003. Refugee Law and Policy. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar will provide an introduction to international and domestic refugee law and policy. Beginning with an overview of the origins of modern international refugee law and policy, the course will then move into a basic background of the asylum process in the United States. We will next engage in an in-depth discussion of the doctrine of American asylum law, walking through the relevant elements laid out in asylum law and focusing particularly on areas of doctrinal growth. The course will also introduce students to the standard for claims to protection under the Convention Against Torture. We will then focus on detention of asylum seekers, reading both case law and policy papers. After this grounding in the American asylum system, the course will step back to examine international issues in refugee protection, including temporary and subsidiary protection, internally displaced persons, and durable solutions. We will wrap up with a discussion of challenges facing the American and international refugee law regimes in the future.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

JUDO 1004. Law and Human Behavior Colloquium. 3 Credit Hours.
This colloquium course will bring in leading scholars to present papers on legal, policy and regulatory implications of different conceptions of human behavior. With the recent explosion of research about how people behave in various contexts, environments, settings and situations, the goal of this seminar is to expose students to this recent research, with an eye toward its application in legal regulation and doctrinal development. There will be outside speakers every other week presenting their current research and its applications. Students are to read these papers before their authors present them, and write a brief two to three page reflection/response paper for each speaker before that speaker's presentation. These assignments will provide students with opportunities to critically evaluate, reflect upon and think carefully about what they have read. In the "off weeks" students will be provided material that provides background on the coming week's topic and instructors will lead discussion to enrich students' responses.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0404.

JUDO 1007. Climate Change Law and Policy. 3 Credit Hours.
Global climate change is threatening to cause severe, widespread and possibly catastrophic changes to our planet. This seminar will consider the implications of climate change for domestic and international law and policy. International negotiations are scheduled to take place in Copenhagen in December 2009, climate change legislation is pending in Congress, and the EPA is poised to begin regulation of greenhouse gases under existing law. How should such legislation be designed in order to accomplish the radical restructuring of the U.S. economy that will be necessary in order shift energy production away from our current heavy reliance on fossil fuels? Should it employ a carbon tax, a cap-and-trade system, or some other regulatory mechanism? How should the costs of transitioning to the new "green economy" be allocated? Should the poor receive subsidies to offset rising energy costs? How might an international agreement to reduce global greenhouse gas emissions be structured to be both politically feasible and fair? Should such an agreement impose costly emissions reduction obligations on developing nations that are already struggling economically, when the problem has been primarily caused by those in the developed world? Who should pay the costs of adapting to those adverse effects of climate change that have already become inevitable - effects that are likely to fall most heavily on the developing world? In the absence of a unified regulatory approach at either the federal (U.S.) or international level, how have advocates already begun to use existing legal structures to try to force action on climate change? We will address these and other questions in the seminar with the help of readings drawn primarily from books and scholarly articles. Students will write a series of short papers over the course of the semester based on the readings and will take an active role in facilitating class discussions.

JUDO 1008. Developing Children's Rights. 3 Credit Hours.
The seminar will cover the following topics: 1) Childhood as a Legal Status . This segment of the course, joined with the next, act as foundation for identifying the basic legal problem in developing the constitutional rights of children; 2) Children as Family Members. This is focused on fleshing out the legal relationship between parents and children; 3) Children as Victims and Witnesses. This segment of investigates one of the dominant tensions in our system: children victimized by the very people assigned to protect them; 4) Children as Students and Agents. Here again, children are assigned to 'protective' environments that are sometimes hostile or unsupportive; 5) Children as Patients, Consumers, Litigants. This is a catch all, following from the highlighted 'agency' element of the school focused material; 6) Children as Offenders. This segment will be structured to consider the ways in which we hold children responsible for their choices even as otherwise characterizing them as incompetent deciders; and 7) Children as Citizens. This is designed to contain material on regulations directed at children like curfews, underage drinking, and gambling prohibitions.

JUDO 1011. Law, Emotions and Neuroscience. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar provides a survey of practical and theoretical aspects of how emotions and neuroscience affect legal rules and institutions. It addresses roles that emotions and neuroscience can, do, and should play in theories and practice of law. Emotions and neuroscience raise profound and interesting questions central to jurisprudence such as these: How do emotions like anger, anxiety, compassion, fear, disgust, guilt, happiness, love, mercy, remorse, resentment, and shame influence the decision-making and judgment processes of judges, juries, lawyers, legislators, litigants, and voters? How and should law take into account evidence based upon brain imaging and scanning technology? How do emotions and reason interact and influence decision making? How are different emotions processed by human brains? Which brain systems regulate which emotions? This course focuses on legal and public policy implications of recent neuroscience research about how emotions influence financial decision making over time and under conditions of risk, strategic interaction, and employment discrimination. Finally, this course addresses how emotions and neuroscience are related to addiction, creating and developing social and institutional structures, criminal and personal responsibility, ethical issues, meaning in our lives, and moral development. This course does not presume any prior formal study of emotions or knowledge about neuroscience, yet it should also be challenging to students with substantial backgrounds in the study of emotions or neuroscience.

JUDO 1013. Selected Issues in Federal Criminal Law and its Enforcement. 3 Credit Hours.
Students will examine the provisions of particular Federal statutes including the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO), the Hobbs Act, the Mail and Wire Fraud statutes, anti-money laundering provisions, the Official Bribery and Gratuities acts and Conspiracy laws. This course will explore the rationale and appropriateness of the choices made by Federal authorities to investigate and prosecute certain offenses--particularly when there is clear, State statutory authority to proceed. Policy issues to be examined will include the viability of the existing emphasis upon an anti-supply strategy in the Federal effort to contend with the abuse of drugs and narcotics in the United States. The current form of the Federal anti-terrorism program and the impact of the elevation of Intelligence activities by the Federal Bureau of Investigation with its effects upon traditional Criminal law enforcement will be reviewed. Each student is expected to produce a major research paper of publishable quality as a basic requirement of the Seminar. 50% of each student's final grade for the course will be based upon the quality of the written product and the remaining half of the course grade (50%) will be based upon the instructor's assessment of the student's contribution to the quality of the discussion during the weekly meetings of the Seminar.

JUDO 1014. Emerging Trends in Labor Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar will examine recent developments in labor law, most of which are occurring in the shadow of the classic NLRA regime. Among other topics, we will likely study workers' efforts to organize via privately-negotiated recognition agreements; state and local governments' efforts to promote or deter collective bargaining; and the particular challenges faced by immigrant and other non-traditional workers. Throughout, we will also consider the broader constitutional and economic issues raised by such developments, and will ask how labor law should adapt to modern workplaces more generally.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0562.

JUDO 1015. LRW III: Civil Motions Practice. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar is designed to provide an in-depth understanding of the primary pre-trial motions used during the course of civil litigation, including: 1) motions to dismiss/preliminary objections, 2) discovery motions, 3) motions in limine, and 4) Frye/Daubert motions challenging expert testimony. Both the Pennsylvania Rules of Civil Procedure and local procedural rules governing motions practice will be examined. Emphasis will be placed on the purpose behind the various motions as well as how to effectively draft those motions for use in civil litigation.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1016. Modern Depositions. 3 Credit Hours.
An examination of the legal, practical and skills dimensions of modern depositions. Topics to be covered: case theory for deposition practice; taking and defending depositions for fact gathering, for preservation of testimony, and for obtaining admissions; taking and defending entity representative, expert witness, and theory testing depositions; use of video recorded depositions; and party and non-party witness preparation.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0517 and JUDO 0540) and (JUDO 0558 or (JUDO 0460 and JUDO 0461))

JUDO 1017. Privacy in Employment Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
The purpose of this writing seminar is to explore employer and employee expectations regarding privacy in the workplace and the role of emerging technology. Topics of discussion will include pre-employment inquiries and screening, workplace investigations, monitoring of off-duty behavior, computer usage and data privacy protection.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1018. Immigrant Low Wage Workers in a Global Economy. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar will examine the laws governing employment relationships and the exclusion of certain classes of workers from worker protection statutes. In particular, we will explore the employment realities of low wage workers, and examine the growth of contingent employment arrangements and their implications for workers' rights and efforts to strengthen them.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1019. Citizenship in Legal and Theoretical Perspective. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar examines how political communities accept, reject, and expel individual members as citizens, and how citizenship law defines and reflects national identity. The course considers how citizenship is acquired at birth, and what requirements are imposed on naturalization applicants. It also considers in what circumstances the government can deprive an individual of citizenship; the special problems of dual nationality; historical racial and gender aspects of citizenship; the special context of terrorism; and the status of non-citizens and the extent to which they can be legally disadvantaged, as for instance with respect to public benefits and political participation. The course also considers the meaning of citizenship beyond the nation-state, including local, indigenous, regional, and global citizenship. The course will pursue critical perspectives on citizenship, drawing from constitutional, statutory, comparative, and international law sources.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0404.

JUDO 1020. Legal and Clinical Approaches to Healthcare. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course provides students with an in-depth analysis of U.S. health policy and the impact on access, safety, quality, and efficacy of health delivery. Students will also be asked to review pertinent cases affecting health care practices as well as legislation affecting the profession. Included is a study of appropriate health care practices and their connection to the law. A major emphasis will be placed on safety in the delivery of health care.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1021. Tax Policy and Administration Colloquium. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
In this course students will read and comment on contemporary scholarship in tax policy either while the scholarship is still a work in progress or shortly after its initial publication and be able to discuss their comments with the author, who will present the work to the class. Scholarship will include work to be published in law reviews as well as other forms of contemporary scholarship.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0600.

JUDO 1022. Foundations of International Criminal Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This is not a basic course in international criminal law (ICL), which typically examines the crimes that constitute ICL, modes of liability, characteristic defenses, the tribunals involved, and the bases for assertions of jurisdiction by those tribunals. Rather, this writing seminar previews that more systematic analysis of ICL by addressing a number of constitutive issues, which are grouped into four broad topics regarding issues of: Definition, Universalism, Criminal Responsibility, and Transitional Justice.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0508.

JUDO 1030. Forensic Evidence, Science, and Medicine. 3 Credit Hours.
Through a Murder Mystery that unfolds during the semester, this course will explore how cases are pieced together through the collection of evidence, crime scene assessments, and forensic analysis as students create and analyze a murder book to help solve the homicide. Through real life experiences and lectures by experts in the field, this course will discuss the legal issues involved in forensics from eyewitness identification to polygraphs.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1031. The Science of Legal Persuasion. 3 Credit Hours.
This course introduces modern scientific knowledge about how people make judgments of fact and values, and trains the student to apply this knowledge to the lawyer's core task of persuasion.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1032. Comparative Family Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This course examines various countries' family laws in light of key comparative law debates, including the legacies of colonialism and the role of globalization; changing definitions of "family" and borrowing across legal systems; migration for marriage and adoption; the role of culture and religion in defining family law codes; and the influence of human rights law. The course will also address, to a lesser extent, the treatment of family law in international law and by multinational courts.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1033. Families in Law and Public Policy. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar is designed to provide the opportunity to learn to be an effective advocate to improve public policy on behalf of children and families. Students will engage in interdisciplinary research regarding legal issues directly affecting children and families in areas such as divorce and separation, child custody and support, adoption and child welfare. The course will look at theories for how law and policy may undermine or support families and the many different approaches to reform. It will consider issues related to socio-economic status, race, religion and ethnicity in the law's relationship to families. It will also consider practices of lawyers and courts in relationship to families and children. We will focus on gaining the skills to (1) identify areas needing reform; (2) conduct research into the problem requiring reform; (3) analyze research to propose solutions to the problem; and (4) effectively represent clients. The course will require both oral and written communication individually and in groups.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1034. Disability Law and Policy. 3 Credit Hours.
In this writing seminar, students will explore laws designed to protect and assist people with disabilities. The course will look at laws to provide income and health insurance support including Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid; laws designed to help people with disabilities to enter the workforce and the community, including the ADA and other civil rights laws; and laws designed to protect people with disabilities in the community, including guardianship, criminal justice, and civil commitment laws. The course will focus on how each area of law is shaped by a different conception policy makers have about who people with disabilities are and how the law can help. Students will compare these and struggle with the ways people must fit into each definition to get help under the law, and will come to understand disability laws and what must be done to access them effectively.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1035. Custody Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar covers the entire field of custody, including the following: History of custody in America; Constitutional implications; Definitions and general principles including joint custody; Psychological issues from the parent's point of view, from the children's point of view and from the lawyer's point of view; Child custody evaluations; Best interest standard and the factors affecting that standard; Paternity related presumptions and rights of third parties, including the state, grandparents, stepparents and relevance of in loco parentis and different burdens of proof; Abuse; Interstate and International Child Custody Disputes; Relocation; Termination of parental rights; Dependency; Adoption; Methods of resolving custody disputes, including negotiation, mediation and litigation; Post-decision proceedings including modification of orders and appeal and contempt; and Special topics including surrogacy, biological or psychological parents and biotechnology issues.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1036. Low Income Taxpayer Policy and Practice. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course enables students to see first-hand the effect tax policies have on low income taxpayers and then to process that experience through the lens of existing tax policy scholarship and commentary. Students will become certified as volunteer preparers for VITA, the IRS's Volunteer Income Tax Assistance project, and will volunteer at a VITA center of their choice for a minimum of 35 hours during the semester. Class will consist of two parts. During the first part, students will share their experiences preparing low income taxpayer returns, specifically linking what they are seeing in the returns to the scholarship they have read for the class. During the second part they will discuss the specific reading assigned for that class. Students will also produce a series of at least four short papers in which they will offer their reflections on their tax preparation experience and the ways in which it does, or does not, connect with the policies reflected in the scholarship they have read. At the end of the course, students will develop a project, present the project to the class, and write a final paper describing the project. The course will be graded, reflecting a combination of the quality of the periodic reflection papers, participation in class meetings, and the final presentation and paper.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0600.

JUDO 1037. Advanced Employment Discrimination. 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar will provide an in-depth exploration of the theory and proof structures of federal employment discrimination law, with an emphasis on exploring how the law should develop in the future.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0537 (may be taken concurrently) or JUDO 0625 (may be taken concurrently))

JUDO 1038. Comparative Corporate Governance. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar will involve in-depth analysis of several major problems in the governance of large corporations, and the ways that power relations operate among the major constituencies of the modern corporation (shareholders, directors, officers, and other stakeholders). To give students a grounding in corporate governance, the course will initially focus on issues raised in the context of U.S. publicly-traded corporations, but as the semester progresses it will introduce particular governance problems and solutions presented in other legal systems.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0508 or JUDO J508)

JUDO 1039. Race and the Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
The seminar goal is to understand the role of the law in creating and perpetuating systems of racial privilege and discrimination in the U.S. from the colonial period to the present. It will also critically examine the effectiveness of race-conscious remedies. The course will cover issues related to African Americans, Asian Americans, Latinos/as, and American Indians.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1041. Poverty Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Students will study what poverty looks like in the U.S. and how law addresses the needs of the poor and otherwise affects them. They will look at both laws specifically designed to alleviate poverty and its impact, like welfare, housing, and health care laws, and laws that have a disproportionate impact on the poor, like criminalization and some discrimination law. A particular emphasis will be placed on whether specific laws are in sync with policy goals. Second, students will consider what policy and litigation strategies are being tried presently to alter how things currently are and think about others that could be used. Students will be asked to design their own strategies and through several serial writing papers, will create a short white paper on the topic.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0404 and JUDO 0410.

JUDO 1042. Legal Research and Writing III: Experts in Civil Litigation. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This writing seminar is designed to train upper level students in how to effectively use experts at trial and to prepare the various documents and other filings that accompany expert testimony. Topics will include: how to retain and investigate experts, qualifications and the admissibility of expert testimony, the scientific or technical reliability of the proposed testimony, methods for effective presentation of expert testimony, cross-examination techniques, and ethical issues surrounding the use of experts.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of S- (except where noted) in JUDO 0540 (D or higher) and (JUDO 0460 or JUDO 0558)

JUDO 1043. Legislation and Public Policy. 1 to 4 Credit Hour.
Learning at the intersection of law, politics, and policy, students will explore - through writing and presentations - how legislatures translate controversial public policies into specific legislation. Students will also explore the avenues of how policy can be manifested beyond the immediate passage of legislation, intersecting with the role of the executive branch and the courts.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1044. Advanced Legal Research. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar is designed to strengthen student research and legal analysis skills through a detailed and comprehensive examination of key legal research resources, with a particular focus on advanced legal research methods and strategies. It teaches students to better evaluate and select sources, develop and implement appropriate research strategies, and conduct effective and efficient research on a range of complex legal topics.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1045. Reproductive Health, Rights and Justice. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar will explore how the law shapes reproductive decision-making through a variety of mechanisms designed to regulate and control sexuality, bodies, and family relationships. Course materials pose challenging questions about the role of government institutions, economic systems, and social structures in influencing or impeding the realization of reproductive rights.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0404.

JUDO 1046. International Investment Law and Arbitration. 1 to 4 Credit Hour.
This course will examine critical legal and policy issues facing the investment treaty regime in a time of sustained economic globalization and populist backlash. The basic principles and policies underlying international investment law will be introduced, including the allure of investor-state arbitration as a means for investment protection. Students will examine and critically assess arguments that investment law undermines human rights protections, discourages legitimate health and safety regulation, and protects polluters while hindering effective responses to climate change. Students will discuss the connections between international investment protection, economic development, and national security. Finally, students will assess proposals to reform or revolutionize the investment treaty system. Students will connect these discussions to broader and timely themes concerning globalization, the rise of populist nationalism, and the future of the global economy.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0556.

JUDO 1047. Internet Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
The goal of this course is to introduce students, by means of a series of specific case studies chosen to illustrate the clash between existing legal regimes and new technologies, to a reasonably comprehensive subset of the legal problems that are being addressed as part of the developing "Internet law."

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1048. Ethical Perspectives on Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course is about different visions of moral responsibility in law. We will examine a variety of concepts, including "neutral partisanship," accountability, fault, causation, and justice. In addition to conventional legal materials, we will use literary works to probe these ideas.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1049. Advanced Topics in Contract Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar surveys the empirical literature on contracts and contracting. It is organized around three questions, which will serially recur in the readings: (1) What terms are in contracts, and why? (2) When do firms or individuals pay attention to terms (if ever)? (3) How do individuals and firms respond to contract terms? That is, rather than approaching the field of contracts from the typical doctrinal or economic perspectives, we will proceed more pragmatically, using sociology and psychology to develop models of how agreements are formed and order relationships.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0406, JUDO J406, or MLAI C406)

JUDO 1050. Law, Legal Theory, and Global and Local Food Systems. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Debates about how food is produced and distributed are often debates about the structure of economic exchange - and thus also debates about the legal rules that govern markets. This seminar uses the production and distribution of food to study the role of law in economic development. We will begin this seminar with history - specifically a history of law and development that traces shifts in dominant ideas of law and development over the twentieth century. We will then study three global shifts in the structure of agricultural production, distribution and trade that roughly parallel this historical periodization. Throughout this investigation, we will ask how law and legal theory shapes food systems and facilitates their transformation and, in turn, how food law and food systems have contributed to development and, sometimes, baffled or misdirected it, producing a great deal of inequality and suffering in their wake. We will look at specific areas of food law and policy including trade liberalization, food aid, land (land reform and land grabs), and biotechnology. We will end the seminar with hopeful contemporary case studies on topics including fair trade, food sovereignty, and food cooperatives. Here, we will pay particular attention to how different actors use law to challenge economic concentration and inequality in global and local food systems and thus how these actors promote particular ideas of social and economic justice and market reform.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1051. Environmental Compliance and Enforcement. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar will introduce students to the environmental law framework in the United States, key federal environmental statutes, various enforcement models built within those statutes, and the theories behind compliance. The course will also briefly touch upon federalism and the relationship between federal and state agencies.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1052. International Compliance. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will survey key compliance challenges facing corporations operating in a global environment. A case study method will be used to explore regulatory regimes in the United States and key foreign jurisdictions that impact international corporate operations, including (i) antitrust/cartel questions, (ii) corruption, (iii) market manipulation, (iv) trading with certain countries, and (v) data privacy. In doing so, compliance issues at all stages of corporate operations will be considered including both ex ante issues (i.e., structuring effective policies, procedures and programs to avoid compliance issues in the United States and abroad) as well as those that arise ex post (i.e. dealing with allegations of non-compliance and remediating any violations found). Also considered will be the liability risks of not only the corporation itself, but also corporate managers and directors (in both their professional and, occasionally, their personal capacities) alongside the risks for third parties who fail to implement and oversee reasonable compliance programs.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1053. Mindful Lawyering: Techniques for Effective Counseling, Negotiation and Advocacy. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course is deigned to accomplish two primary goals. First, to teach students mindfulness practices and to explore how those practices can enhance their effectiveness in various lawyering skill areas. These include the ability to: (1) listen to, counsel, and work effectively with, clients; (2) identify and deploy negotiating strategies that maximize value for all parties; (3) mediate conflicts; (4) advocate for desired legal and social outcomes; (5) develop leadership skills; and (6) maintain balance and focus in high stress professional environments. The second major course goal will be to teach students effective legal researching and writing techniques.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1054. Regulating Cyberthreats. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will explore how law, including domestic and international law rules on cybercrime and international law rules applicable to cyber warfare, regulates cyberthreats. It will also analyze current debates over the appropriate forms of international governance of cyberspace and explore how law might be used to regulate the prospects of cyberterrorism.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1055. Treaties and Negotiations. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Treaties have long served as one of the several sources of international law. Increasingly, they have come to serve as the dominant source, regulating almost every aspect of international affairs, from bilateral, one-time deals between States to multilateral agreements that aspire to law-like status. This course aims to consider the treaty from three perspectives. First, it examines the treaty concept, using historical, theoretical and functional materials to assess this instrument's role in international relations. Second, broadly following the structure of the 1969 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties – 'the treaty on treaties' – it examines the life-cycle of treaties from their inception to their termination. Third, it examines how domestic legal systems regulate treaty-making using the U.S. system as a case study. Taken together, this course considers what treaties are alongside the modern law and practice on their formation, application, interpretation, and termination. Students will write a paper examining a topic related to treaties and will participate in an in-class exercise involving the negotiation and adoption of the text of a treaty.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1056. Legal Research and Writing III: Judicial Opinions; Critical Drafting and Analysis. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course has two primary goals. First, students will learn a process for drafting judicial opinions, including the development of legal reasoning and authority to support their conclusions. They will read materials on how to write judicial opinions and will study judicial opinions to deconstruct their components. Second, students will learn how to view law and judicial opinions from a variety of diverse perspectives and learn to integrate critical legal theory into their legal reasoning and opinion drafting. They will read legal theories that critique law and read judicial opinions that incorporate those legal theories into the law. By focusing on gender, race, class, sexuality, economic class and masculinity, the course requires a desire to learn a new style of writing, a willingness to be deliberate and conscious about how to write law, and an open mind.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1057. Toxic Chemical Regulation. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
This seminar will introduce students to some of the most important broad policy issues raised by the regulation of toxic chemicals, first investigating how these issues have been confronted in the past by regulatory schemes in Europe, the states, and under the old federal law, and then exploring the new regulatory scheme that the EPA is currently constructing under the new statute (the Frank R. Lautenberg Chemical Safety for the 21st Century Act). Writing assignments would be practice-oriented and may include, for example, comments on currently pending regulations that could actually be filed with the EPA.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1058. Lawyering for Entrepreneurship. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
This writing seminar will introduce students to the practice of business transactions law. Business transactions can, of course, take many forms, but most commonly involve either acquisitions or financings. These are fancy words for "purchases" and "investments," respectively. Other transactions include joint ventures, product development agreements, franchise agreements, licenses, and so on. This course is organized around two transactions: (i) the formation (financing) of an imaginary high-tech venture, and (ii) an asset purchase by that venture of another business. In addition to the skills component, students will be expected to draft documents, maintain a strategy journal, and complete several written assignments.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0508 (may be taken concurrently) or JUDO J508 (may be taken concurrently))

JUDO 1059. Current Issues in Cyberlaw. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
This course is a practical course in which students will apply cyberlaw to pseudo clients. Legal cyberlaw principles involved in electronic transactions, defamation, data breaches, identity theft, hacking, cryptography and encryption, cyberprivacy, cybersecurity, cybercrimes, national security, electronic surveillance, virtual currencies, the deep and dark web, among other current cyberlaw issues will be studied.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1060. Internet of Things. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
The Internet of Things (IoT) is the common name for the emerging world of everyday objects such as wearable technology, personal devices, medical electronics, appliances, homes and cars being linked to each other through the Internet. They collect large amounts of data that is stored in cloud platforms and communicated to other devices and to other parties. They provide revenue for businesses that sell data collected from IoT devices. Additionally, they provide developers, governments, researchers, investigators, hackers and others access to analyze information in different ways. This course examines the legal, policy, and technology issues of these and other expanding aspects of IoT, focusing on how lawyers can be integral to the course of IoT development.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1061. Payment Systems. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
This course focuses on modern consumer payment systems, and the rules, laws, and regulations that govern them. We will look at payment instruments commonly used by consumers - credit cards, debit cards, prepaid cards, and checks - and will discuss the ways in which payments are authorized, cleared, and settled. We will also examine the ways in which consumers who use electronic payment systems are protected. In addition, we will discuss emerging payment instruments, privacy concerns, and policy considerations.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1062. How to Run for Office. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This 3-credit semester long writing seminar will help students learn and practice the elements that would make for a successful candidate in a run for office or a valuable addition to any campaign team. Students will learn about the intricacies of an election, campaign finance law, learn how to build a campaign plan and team, learn how to analyze your constituency, and develop a clear and convincing campaign message. Come to this course and articulate your beliefs about the role of government, make a ten-minute stump speech outlining your plan for your team, and develop a detailed legislative strategy for your first day in office. Learn the history of democratic politics in the United State and how to successfully join the many lawyers who have run for office.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1063. Special Education Law-US. 3 Credit Hours.
Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1064. International Trade Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course focuses on the law of international investments and trade policy and covers the nature of the international investment transaction and the various forms of regulation thereof. The course will also consider national governmental policies dealing with trade and the restriction thereof.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Course Attributes: ANON

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1065. Scientific and Statistical Evidence. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will explore the ways in which scientific and statistical evidence is used and evaluated in civil and criminal legal proceedings today. We will introduce the principles and regimes governing the admissibility of evidence of a scientific or technical nature and discuss the underlying policy choices. We will discuss cultural and social contexts in which forensic disciplines have been developed and used in court; interactions between legal and scientific cultures that arise in this context; the roles played by experts, juries, and judges; and scientific, judicial, and lay perceptions of scientific material presented in court. Examining in more detail a number of forensic techniques that have come under scrutiny in recent years will allow us to delve deeper into some of the central questions in scientific evidence today - What makes scientific evidence reliable or unreliable? What is the line between "junk science" and admissible evidence? How might experts and data be biased, and how might courts and litigants detect and correct for those biases? - and engage in a broader debate about the role of science in adjudication. Finally, we will assess proposals to reform or radically overhaul the manner in which scientific and statistical evidence is used in courts today, drawing on both domestic proposals and foreign approaches.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0540.

JUDO 1067. Asylum at the US-Mexico Border: Resistance and the Rule of Law. 1 to 4 Credit Hour.
This course will examine federal policies that limit the right to seek asylum at the US-Mexico border and impact litigation challenging these policies. Students will examine the role of the federal court in protecting the rights of asylum seekers at the border and will also explore the role that practices such as accompaniment, human rights monitoring, and popular rights education play in resisting these policies at the border. This course will also examine federal and state responses to resistance, including the criminalization of migrants and human rights defenders. This course will examine case studies and emphasize practice skills in movement lawyering, human rights monitoring, and impact litigation.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0550 (may be taken concurrently) or JUDO 1003 (may be taken concurrently))

JUDO 1068. International Human Rights of Children. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This introductory course will expose students to contemporary children's rights issues. Students will learn the sources of substantive and procedural rights of children under international law. Students will explore the evolution of children's rights by reviewing international declarations and conventions of the rights of the child, culminating with the U.N. Convention on the Rights of the Child and its optional protocols on children in armed conflict and on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography. Students will learn about mechanisms for monitoring children's rights, through the state (country) committees and the U.N. Committee on the Rights of the Child. Students will also learn about complaint procedures through the third Optional Protocol on a Communications Procedures (which addresses matters such as exhaustion of remedies). Students will read case studies addressing issues such as the death penalty for children, access to education, and the use of child soldiers. Over the course of the semester, students will become familiar with international children's rights standards, as well as opportunities - and limits - for advancing children's rights.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1069. ICC Moot Court. 1 to 4 Credit Hour.
ICC Moot Court members are selected after the first year of law school to participate in an inter-scholastic appellate competition involving law school students from other schools. ICC Moot Court members engage in research, writing, and/or oral advocacy projects designed to learn International Law through a case file.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1070. Citizenism: Race and Immigration. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will examine how shifting racial legal categories are a critical factor in constructing citizenship. The course will focus on intersectional rights, justice, and liberation through the prism of historical, contextualized, and modernized immigration law, enforcement, and politics. Course discussions will analyze identity issues such as race, class, gender, immigration status, and sexuality. Specific doctrinal areas of law covered in this course include Constitutional Law and Criminal Law to advance student understanding of how our legal system and governance impact marginalized communities in the United States.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1072. Gender Equity in the Legal Profession: Issues and Solutions. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
The course will focus on biases (explicit and implicit) against women in the legal profession. The course will examine forms of bias (e.g., Confirmation Bias, Prove-it-Again Bias, Tightrope Bias, Motherhood and Workplace Bias), and the difficulties of combatting implicit bias because it is often subtle and hidden. The course will also cover the impact of implicit biases. This will include unequal representation in various fields of and roles in practice (e.g., the underrepresentation of women as first chairs at trial, lead negotiators, and patent and IP practice, just by way of examples.) It will also examine the impact of these biases in, e.g., performance evaluations, access to mentoring, high-quality assignments, networking opportunities, fair pay, promotions, as well as being mistaken for administrative staff and/or asked to perform "office housework." The course will then focus on an analysis of methods to combat or "interrupt" biases. This portion of the course will focus on solutions, including institutional best practices, the importance of allies and mentors, grit and growth mindsets, and the ways law, regulatory regimes and ethical rules can be utilized to bring about change. The course will conclude with studies in leadership, equipping students to recognize and seize opportunities to manage their own professional journey and to level the playing field for everyone.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1073. Law of Investment Management. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Law of Investment Management is an introduction to the primary federal statutes and administrative regulations that govern investment advisers and investment companies (primarily mutual funds but also introducing other types of registered and private investment funds). This course will focus on the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, the Investment Companies Act of 1940, the regulations promulgated by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission thereunder, and selected judicial opinions and SEC guidance interpreting those statutes and regulations.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

JUDO 1080. Legal Research Writing III: Legal Drafting Seminar. 3 Credit Hours.
Drafting is an essential experience in your preparation for the practice of law. This course presents a unified approach to developing the drafting skills that span different categories of legal documents. Students will learn how to solve a client's problems and to accomplish a client's goals through legal drafting. The primary emphasis will be on drafting statutes and contracts. However, students will also learn drafting principles that apply to other public rules (constitutional provisions, codes, ordinances, administrative rules/regulations, executive orders, and court rules) and private documents (leases, covenants, bylaws, and settlement agreements).

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1081. Innovation Law and Policy. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will examine how law and policy affect, and are affected by, innovation and scientific/technological advancement. To understand the relationship between law, policy, and innovation, we will focus on several ways in which innovation, law and policy interact with one another. This course will begin by reviewing certain laws and policies that were developed to promote innovation and technological development. While this course will explore certain concepts revolving around biotechnology, genetics, and neuroscience, students do not need a background in science to take this course.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in JUDO 0547.

JUDO 1082. Combating Counterfeiting and Piracy. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
This course is designed to progress as a case study in which the students will initially review a client intake memorandum and investigative report. Students will next develop and present a strategy to their client for combating the illegal activity; students will also present their strategy to relevant government agencies for approval. Next, the students will implement their strategy through assembling their evidence, identifying the appropriate defendants, statutes and jurisdictions for prosecution of their claims, and preparing and arguing motions seeking the desired relief, as well as organizing execution of the same upon the defendants. Through this course students will consider various ex parte civil litigation tactics and strategies available to intellectual property owners for combating illicit trade and supporting both civil and criminal remedies.

JUDO 1083. Child Abuse and Sex Trafficking of Minors. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course is designed to provide an introduction to tort actions involving child abuse and sex trafficking of minors in the United States. During the first half of the semester students will discuss the legal landscape of the child welfare system, including definitions and signs of abuse, the mechanics of state intervention, the role of agencies and mandatory reporters. The second half of the course will focus on the sex-trafficking of minors, highlighting sex trafficking as a subset under the larger human trafficking landscape. Students will discuss state and federal anti-trafficking legislation, profiles of victims and perpetrators and special considerations when taking a minor trafficking case to court. Students will also explore policy and ethical considerations relevant to sex-trafficking civil litigation including the efficacy of third-party liability in preventing the abuse and trafficking of minors.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1085. Law and Global Development. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
This course will deal with past and present debates over the role that law and legal institutions play in international development. We will examine various aspects of the relationships among economic ideas, legal ideas, and development policies pursued at national and international levels, with an emphasis on trade, global supply chains, and the roles of international organizations such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. The course will introduce students to diverse methodologies, including economics, law, critical studies, and other disciplines to understand the successes and failures of globalization and development initiatives over time and across countries.

JUDO 1086. Diversity, Equity and Inclusion in the Legal Profession. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
This course explores why diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) are core competencies in the practice of law and in the administration of justice. This course will examine the history and current state of the legal profession in terms of representation by people from historically underrepresented groups, including women, racial and ethnic minorities, LGBTQ+ individuals, and people with disabilities. The course will also explore the role of individuals, institutions, and systems in perpetuating discrimination and injustice. The course will also examine the moral and business case for DEI and the impact of current and historical events on DEI.

JUDO 1091. Private Equity and Hedge Funds. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course explores the role of private fund investors in global financial markets today. This course will focus on hedge funds and two types of private equity investors: venture capital and buyout funds. We will discuss the structure of private funds and investment strategies of private funds. We will also gain an understanding of private fund transactions and will focus on venture capital transactions involving portfolio companies. We will also discuss the regulatory environment for private fund investors, including with respect to the Securities Act of 1933, the Investment Company Act of 1940, the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, and other relevant laws and regulations. We will discuss a number of other issues of current interest in the private fund arena, including issues related to diversity and inclusion and the role of pension fund investors in the private fund arena.

JUDO 1094. Race and Gender Equality in Commercial Law, Markets and Business Organizations. 3 Credit Hours.
This seminar focuses on the intersection between race and gender issues and commercial/corporate law, business organizations, and product markets. Sections will include: examining the impact of race and gender issues on regulated industries, markets, and public corporations; exploring how commercial law regimes (such as bankruptcy, tax, housing, banking) impact race and gender equality; the use of data analysis to support or reject claims of race and gender bias in organizations and transactional markets.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 1095. Mergers and Acquisitions - Advocacy to Antitrust Authorities. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Future litigators, antitrust specialists, corporate attorneys and bankers stand to benefit from an appreciation of how antitrust affects deal-making, how the regulatory process works, how transactions with substantial competitive overlaps might be approved on the basis of creative advocacy, and what mergers may be possible now and in the future in a dynamic competitive environment. In this experiential learning course, students will analyze the competitive implications of potential transactions, study the Department of Justice Merger Guidelines, conduct industry research, draft memos setting forth antitrust arguments to the agencies, and develop a presentation for the purpose of demonstrating that a proposed transaction will not lessen competition and should be allowed to proceed.

JUDO 1098. Artificial Intelligence Law. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
Artificial Intelligence (AI) attempts to replicate human intelligence in a machine so the machine can perform tasks that typically require human intelligence. Based on the capacity to mimic human characteristics, the technology used, the real-world applications, and the theory of the mind, AI is focused into goal-oriented abilities designed to perform specific tasks, or AI abilities that are in parity with human abilities, or AI abilities that are more capable than a human. Lawyers are presented with issues related to: autonomous vehicles; medical devices (e.g., microchip implants in humans, ingestible pills), medical diagnosis, and health/medical care; reducing energy use; improving cybersecurity; new methods of climate and environmental protection; a safer society; "deep fakes" used to spread disinformation; bias in AI analysis and its impacts on marginalized groups (e.g., employment, setting bail, and criminal sentencing); AI and Intellectual Property (IP) (AI as inventor or author, and IP protection for AI); AI and social media, especially with respect to data mining and privacy concerns; AI in law practice and law firm management; implications of AI for employment; AI and legal decision-making for claims for benefits such as social security disability or workers compensation; and AI affecting finance, transportation, national security, advertising, and a variety of other fields. The governance of AI is aimed at ensuring AI's numerous potential benefits while minimizing risks to consumers' health, safety, security, and privacy is only beginning. Lawyers, policymakers, and risk management professionals must address governance issues with respect to development, deployment and use of AI applications.

JUDO 1099. Empirical Analysis and the Law. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
In many areas of law and law-making, attorneys are increasingly called upon to evaluate and present empirical evidence to support their claims. Fortunately, the majority of empirical research today uses only a handful of research methods. In this seminar, you will learn about these methods and the types of legal questions that they can address. The goal of this seminar is not to equip students to become producers of empirical research, but rather, to help students become better consumers of empirical research and in so doing, build an important set of skills for legal practice. There is no special preparation or background in empirical methods necessary for this course.

JUDO 1102. Law and Justice: International Literary Perspectives. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
What is justice? One important component of justice is a decision made according to a rule, rendered by a neutral, impartial decision-maker. But the rule of law ideal does not exhaust our conceptions of justice. When rigidly applying rules seems unduly harsh, justice may consist of showing mercy. Or an occasion might seem to require an empathetic rather than an impartial decision-maker. And, sometimes, focusing on results rather than on procedure is important. Drawing upon literature--short stories, novels, plays--from several countries, this course will examine competing images of just outcomes and procedures. Through in-class discussions, simulations, and writing exercises, students will bring these differing images to bear on an actual legal case in order to see how alternative ideas of justice might affect how lawyers understand and perform their work.

JUDO 1112. Law, Innovation and Technology Colloquium. 2 to 4 Credit Hours.
Innovation and new technologies consistently generate regulatory questions - whether and how to govern the production, distribution, operation, or use of the technology - and what consequences may follow from regulation for industry, marginalized groups, and the population in general. Of course, different technologies involve different background conditions and contexts that raise discrete regulatory questions and related issues of law and policy. Thus, there is a robust - and growing - set of sub-disciplines focused on law relating to cybersecurity, big data, artificial intelligence, robotics, nanotechnology, and assisted reproductive technology to name just a few. This course seeks to provide students with the analytic and critical tools necessary to engage current law and technology issues in a sophisticated way both theoretically and doctrinally. Ideally, these tools may eventually be employed by interested students in the future to evaluate the latest innovations and technologies over time.

JUDO 5001. Equity and Bias in Education: Selected Topics. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Education law in the United States presents a stunning array of bias issues. At the very top of the list, of course, is racial discrimination in the assignment of students to schools and the provision of resources. Even those students who never take an education law course are likely to encounter Brown v. Board of Education and perhaps even Parents Involved in Community Schools v. Seattle School District No. 1. This course is intended to focus on selected issues of bias in the law of elementary, secondary and higher education. The focus on bias will have two major aspects. One is the exploration of ways in which education law has often, in combination with other areas of law, such as discriminatory housing laws, contributed to educational inequity based on race, ethnicity, gender, disability, and other categories. The other aspect involves looking at ways in which education law has been, is being, or could be changed in order to address these inequities.

JUDO 5040. Survey of Legal Topics. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This limited enrollment course addresses selected legal subjects likely to be encountered upon entering the practice of law and will involve systematic study and assessment of those subjects.

Class Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Classes: Third Year Law Prof, Fourth Year Law Prof.
Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 5041. Poverty Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Students will study what poverty looks like in the U.S. and how law addresses the needs of the poor and otherwise affects them. They will look at both laws specifically designed to alleviate poverty and its impact, like welfare, housing, and health care laws, and laws that have a disproportionate impact on the poor, like criminalization and some discrimination law. A particular emphasis will be placed on whether specific laws are in sync with policy goals. Second, students will consider what policy and litigation strategies are being tried presently to alter how things currently are and think about others that could be used.

JUDO 5042. Introduction to Compliance and Ethics. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Over the past few decades, the federal government has increased its focus on fraud and corruption in a variety of industries. Businesses are now required to develop comprehensive compliance and ethics programs to comply with a variety of federal, state, and in some cases foreign laws and regulations, in order to minimize risk and avoid legal repercussions. As a result, legal professionals who can advise companies on the development and implementation of effective compliance programs are in high demand. This course will introduce you to the compliance profession, one of the fastest-growing markets for lawyers. Focusing on health care, life sciences, financial industry, energy, and manufacturing sectors, the course will discuss the importance of corporate compliance and provide an overview of the legal and ethical considerations at play. The course will also explore relevant laws, examine emerging risks and provide an understanding of the design and implementation of compliance and ethics program in health care and multiple industries.

JUDO 5043. Health Care Fraud: Investigation, Prosecution, and Compliance. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This is a course in the investigation and civil and criminal prosecution of health care fraud and abuse. It will introduce the basic statutory structures of the provision of health care in the United States, the mechanisms by which individuals have abused that structure for personal or corporate gain, and the statutes and regulations under which such individuals are held responsible for that conduct. It will also explore the processes by which such abuse is discovered and investigated.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 5044. Advanced Legal Research. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course is designed to strengthen student research and legal analysis skills through a detailed and comprehensive examination of key legal research resources, with a particular focus on advanced legal research methods and strategies. It teaches students to better evaluate and select sources, develop and implement appropriate research strategies, and conduct effective and efficient research on a range of complex legal topics.

JUDO 5046. Disability Law and Policy. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Students will explore laws designed to protect and assist people with disabilities. The course will look at laws to provide income and health insurance support including Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid; laws designed to help people with disabilities to enter the workforce and the community, including the ADA and other civil rights laws; and laws designed to protect people with disabilities in the community, including guardianship, criminal justice, and civil commitment laws. The course will focus on how each area of law is shaped by a different conception policy makers have about who people with disabilities are and how the law can help. Students will compare these and struggle with the ways people must fit into each definition to get help under the law, and will come to understand disability laws and what must be done to access them effectively.

JUDO 5049. Advanced Topics in Contract Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course surveys the empirical literature on contracts and contracting. It is organized around three questions, which will serially recur in the readings: (1) What terms are in contracts, and why? (2) When do firms or individuals pay attention to terms (if ever)? (3) How do individuals and firms respond to contract terms? That is, rather than approaching the field of contracts from the typical doctrinal or economic perspectives, we will proceed more pragmatically, using sociology and psychology to develop models of how agreements are formed and order relationships.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0406, JUDO J406, or MLAI C406)

JUDO 5050. Commercial Transactions. 4 Credit Hours.
This course will introduce students to the law of Secured Transactions under Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code and how transactions under it are addressed in bankruptcy, which is often viewed as the "acid test" for their enforceability (or not). Studying these subjects together (sometimes characterized as a "systems approach") makes it possible to better understand how credit transactions succeed or fail. Thus, creditors who have a properly created security interest will typically receive the full value of their interest in that property; unsecured creditors, by contrast, have no interest in a debtor's property at all. They typically recover far less. Moreover, while most credit transactions are negotiated and documented against the possibility of bankruptcy, there are other systems and laws for the collection of unsecured debt about which all practicing lawyers must have some basic knowledge, which this course would provide.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 5052. Justice Lab Seminar. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
Justice Lab students participate in a classroom component that addresses the theoretical and substantive bases of Justice Lab's work. Classroom sessions are also an opportunity to reflect on ongoing client representation, and provide classroom skill development in support of client work.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Co-requisites: JUDO 0784.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 5053. International Compliance. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will survey key compliance challenges facing corporations operating in a global environment. A case study method will be used to explore regulatory regimes in the United States and key foreign jurisdictions that impact international corporate operations, including (i) antitrust/cartel questions, (ii) corruption, (iii) market manipulation, (iv) trading with certain countries, and (v) data privacy. In doing so, compliance issues at all stages of corporate operations will be considered including both ex ante issues (i.e., structuring effective policies, procedures and programs to avoid compliance issues in the United States and abroad) as well as those that arise ex post (i.e. dealing with allegations of non-compliance and remediating any violations found). Also considered will be the liability risks of not only the corporation itself, but also corporate managers and directors (in both their professional and, occasionally, their personal capacities) alongside the risks for third parties who fail to implement and oversee reasonable compliance programs.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO 5054. Mindful Lawyering: Techniques for Effective Counseling, Negotiation and Advocacy. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course is deigned to accomplish two primary goals. First, to teach students mindfulness practices and to explore how those practices can enhance their effectiveness in various lawyering skill areas. These include the ability to: (1) listen to, counsel, and work effectively with, clients; (2) identify and deploy negotiating strategies that maximize value for all parties; (3) mediate conflicts; (4) advocate for desired legal and social outcomes; (5) develop leadership skills; and (6) maintain balance and focus in high stress professional environments. The second major course goal will be to teach students effective legal researching and writing techniques.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

JUDO 5057. Internet of Things. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
The Internet of Things (IoT) is the common name for the emerging world of everyday objects such as wearable technology, personal devices, medical electronics, appliances, homes and cars being linked to each other through the Internet. They collect large amounts of data that is stored in cloud platforms and communicated to other devices and to other parties. They provide revenue for businesses that sell data collected from IoT devices. Additionally, they provide developers, governments, researchers, investigators, hackers and others access to analyze information in different ways. This course examines the legal, policy, and technology issues of these and other expanding aspects of IoT, focusing on how lawyers can be integral to the course of IoT development.

JUDO 5065. Police and School District Litigation Defense Clinic. 1 to 4 Credit Hour.
Second and Third year students will examine policy considerations and litigation strategies in the context of local civil rights litigation. Half the class will work with and represent Philadelphia police officers and other City employees in civil rights suits, while the other half will represent employees of the School District of Philadelphia. The students will examine a number of recent high profile cases litigated by the City and School District and be asked to consider the interplay of civil procedure, constitutional law, and public policy, and how these elements are used to effectuate successful results. Students will learn from instructors and guest lecturers who litigated these cases and be afforded the opportunity to discuss in an intimate setting how these attorneys approach critical litigation. Students will then apply what they learn when they are given the responsibility (under supervision) for drafting motions, preparing and responding to discovery, attending settlement conferences, and appearing before the Court or arbitration panels. By participating in every phase of litigation and learning how strategy permeates the process of litigation, students will begin to gain the practical experience that takes many attorneys years to acquire.

JUDO 5072. Immigration Consequences of Criminal Conviction. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Non-citizens who have contact with the criminal justice system face a range of unique consequences, including arrest by immigration authorities, deportation, and detention without a bond hearing. This course explores multiple points of intersection between criminal law and immigration law. Topics include the immigration consequences of criminal convictions, the constitutional limitations on detention and deportation of non-citizens with convictions, and the federal government's use of state and local criminal justice systems to enforce immigration laws. This course will familiarize students with the substantive law necessary to represent clients facing the immigration consequences of criminal convictions in both the criminal and immigration systems. It will also give students the opportunity to discuss the policy implications of predicating immigration consequences on a criminal justice system that disparately impacts poor people and people of color. The course will also familiarize students with the role constitutional law and the federal courts should play in limiting the political branches' power over non-citizens with convictions.

JUDO J478. Cyberprivacy Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Today's state of technology provides limitless possibilities to collect, analyze and exchange information globally. Cyberprivacy law aims to regulate the use of information that may identify an individual, so-called personal information, such as names, pictures, GPS location information, cookies and IP addresses. During this course we will discuss the rationale and ethics behind privacy regulations while defining what should constitute privacy from the perspective of consumers, technology innovators and the government. Even if global cyberprivacy regulations are desired by some stakeholders, laws tend to be limited to the national level. The European Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), adopted in the European Economic Area in 2016, has set a new standard in terms of protection of personal information that has been followed by many countries since. Analyzing the GDPR, students will learn about the European approach to personal information protection, data processing, and domestic and international data transfers. We will apply the newly acquired knowledge to practice in joint course exercises of daily tasks privacy lawyers face, including analyzing data flows from commercial websites, creating response protocols for data breaches and drafting a privacy policy. Once being familiar with the GDPR, students will have the opportunity to discover and compare other privacy law initiatives from around the globe in class.

JUDO J494. Advising the Multinational Company on Global Legal Issues. 2 or 3 Credit Hours.
This interactive and participatory course is intended to provide a survey of the types of issues confronting lawyers, and particularly in-house lawyers, who advise multinational corporations on a worldwide basis. The areas to be discussed include topics that will cross corporate law, tax law, labor and employment law, employee benefits, litigation and corporate compliance. Real life examples will be used to illustrate the complicated nature yet importance of this type of practice. Further, in addition to the more substantive legal topics to be covered, the course will also be interspersed with practice tips, jurisdictional practice highlights and ethical considerations for the multinational practitioner. The success of the course depends highly on each class member coming to class prepared, and more important, on each class member participating in our discussions. Because of this, class participation will account for 30% of the final grade. The remaining 70% of a student's grade will be based on a final paper and presentation (weighted equally). Note: This course does not satisfy the graduation writing requirement.

JUDO J652. International Development and Policy Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will examine how law and legal institutions shape economic, political and social development in both theory and practice. We will look at some key texts and debates to understand the theoretical foundations of the field. We will also look at development practice from a lawyer's perspective, drawing on examples from both developed and developing countries. These case studies will help us critically examine questions such as: Do urban slum residents have the same access to justice as their wealthier neighbors? Which corporate structures should a developing economy adopt? Do intellectual property rights form a barrier to improving public health? What is the rule of law and why are economists promoting it? The aim of the course is not to find definitive answers to development questions. Rather, students will be encouraged to think broadly and deeply about development and how law relates to it.

JUDO J656. International Compliance. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
Increased globalization of commerce has substantially increased the risk of fines, sanctions and costly litigation resulting from the way and manner business is conducted around the world. Governments and various Unions have responded to globalization in varying degrees by enforcing existing laws, enacting new laws and regulatory requirements addressing competition, market manipulation, trade and corruption. Aside from costly fines levied against the Corporation, various legal regimes have begun to impose direct liability on directors, managers and third parties who have failed to implement and oversee reasonable compliance programs. These factors require a vigorous and ever changing compliance programs for corporations. A thorough understanding of compliance issues helps lawyers to craft creative and effective legal solutions for their clients. An excellent compliance program cannot only prevent problems, but also discover issues at an early stage and can be used to receive credit where a corporation runs afoul of a law.

JUDO J813. Comparative Corporate Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
In both the US and Japan, the corporation is the overwhelmingly dominant form of business entity. Moreover, given that a good deal the modern Japanese Company Law was derived from Illinois corporate law, it is not surprising that (on the surface at least), Japanese and US corporate law take similar approaches to many of the legal problems which accompany the characteristic fact of the modern corporation the separation of ownership and control. This course seeks to explore many of these doctrinal similarities, while also analyzing some of the differences in the application and enforcement thereof, within the larger context of Japanese and US business practice. It also hopes to elicit some lessons which the corporate law of each country may provide for lawyers and policy makers of the other.

JUDO J924. International Contract Drafting. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course bridges the gap between contract theory and contract practice and offers practical insights into international contracts such as licenses, distributorships and joint ventures. The focus will be on skills development in drafting these types of contracts. Enrollment is limited to LLM students.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO J925. Refugee Law. 3 Credit Hours.
This serial writing seminar will provide an introduction to international and domestic refugee law and policy.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0558 (may be taken concurrently), JUDO 0583 (may be taken concurrently), JUDO 0841 (may be taken concurrently), or JUDO J583 (may be taken concurrently))

JUDO J926. Comparative Corporate Governance. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will involve in-depth analysis of several major problems in the governance of large corporations, and the ways that power relations operate among the major constituencies of the modern corporation (shareholders, directors, officers, and other stakeholders). To give students a grounding in corporate governance, the course will initially focus on issues raised in the context of U.S. publicly-traded corporations, but as the semester progresses it will introduce particular governance problems and solutions presented in other legal systems.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of D in (JUDO 0508 or JUDO J508)

JUDO J927. International Protection of Human Rights. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
This course is designed as an introduction to issues of law, policy and institutional machinery for the promotion of human rights in the world community. Are nations bound by human rights laws (such as treaties, customary international law, U.N. Charter, European Convention, etc.)? Are the courts of a nation so bound? Where there is violation of human rights law, when and under what circumstances may diplomatic intervention, economic sanctions or military force be used to redress wrongs or to cause compliance with human rights guarantees?

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO J928. Unincorporated Business Entities. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
Most business organizations in the United States are no longer corporations, but unincorporated business associations such as sole proprietorships, partnerships, or limited liability corporations (LLCs). Entities including "mom and pop" stores, high-tech start-ups, and sophisticated investment funds use these business forms. This class examines these business entities, which every attorney engaged in a business practice needs to understand. After a review of agency law, the course will examine partnerships, limited partnerships (LPs), LLCs, and if time permits some less common unincorporated business forms.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO J959. The Global Workplace. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This three-credit writing seminar will strive to be, as one noted American scholar recommends, "comparative in method" and "transnational in perspective." It will compare the laws and legal environments of Japan, the U.S., and the E.U, and it will review the materials and discuss the mechanisms for attempting to achieve global labor standards. In their research, students may choose to focus on one of the following components of an inchoate global labor law: international treaties and conventions, best practices, corporate voluntary codes of conduct, transnational labor unionism, and the role of social movements.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO J984. National Security Law. 2 or 3 Credit Hours.
This course will study national security threats – those posed to the United States by state and non-state actors who target US civilians, personnel and interests with the aim of achieving political change – and examine the legal controversies raised in responding to these threats domestically and abroad. The course will be divided into two parts. Part One will examine legal controversies in constitutional law. This includes the scope of presidential powers in times of heightened national security threats and the separation of powers more broadly. We will also explore the tension between national security and individual liberties during times of crisis. Part Two will examine the legal controversies raised by irregular combat between the US and non-state actors internationally. We will study some of the most important and controversial legal issues triggered by the so-called 'war on terror.'

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO J991. International Development and Policy Law. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This course will examine how law and legal institutions shape economic, political and social development in both theory and practice. We will look at some key texts and debates to understand the theoretical foundations of the field. We will also look at development practice from a lawyer's perspective, drawing on examples from both developed and developing countries. These case studies will help us critically examine questions such as: Do urban slum residents have the same access to justice as their wealthier neighbors? Which corporate structures should a developing economy adopt? Do intellectual property rights form a barrier to improving public health? What is the rule of law and why are economists promoting it? The aim of the course is not to find definitive answers to development questions. Rather, students will be encouraged to think broadly and deeply about development and how law relates to it.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Law Graduate, Law.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

JUDO R427. Introduction to International Business Law. 2 Credit Hours.
This course will introduce you to international business law primarily in a transactional setting. This is a vast subject. To represent clients that want to do business with persons from other countries, a practitioner needs to know something of how contract law works in other countries, and of the international law (such as it may be) that will govern international transactions. In addition, one also needs to know about mechanisms businesses can use to deal with insecurity about delivery or payment. This insecurity can haunt any contract between strangers but is endemic in transactions between strangers when business is conducted at great distances. The lawyer also needs to know how to prospectively shape dispute resolution, should a dispute arise how to limit where and how disputes are resolved and what law the decision maker will use to decide them. This course will offer a broad survey of these and possibly other areas that confront business lawyers representing clients in international business transactions.

JUDO R494. Advising the Multinational Company on Global Legal Issues. 2 to 3 Credit Hours.
This interactive and participatory course is intended to provide a survey of the type of issues confronting lawyers, and particularly in-house lawyers, who advise multinational corporations on a worldwide basis. The areas to be discussed include topics that will cross corporate law, tax law, labor and employment law, employee benefits, litigation and corporate compliance. Real life examples will be used to illustrate the complicated nature yet importance of this type of practice. Further, in addition to the more substantive legal topics to be covered, the course will also be interspersed with practice tips, jurisdictional practice highlights and ethical considerations for the multinational practitioner.
