MKTG 5001. Marketing Management/Strategy. 3 Credit Hours.
This course is designed to provide students with an understanding of how firms develop marketing strategies to create and manage the creation of meaningful offers that are valued by consumers for the purpose of developing and maintaining customer relationships. Initially, we will address the evolution of market systems at the macroeconomic level and the role that marketing plays in bridging the gap between the production and consumption sectors of the economy. Subsequently, we will explore how firms develop strategies to create customer value through product management, pricing, marketing channels, supply chain management, customer relationship management and communications directed to buyers and also develop an understanding of how buyers acquire, consume and dispose of these goods and services.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

MKTG 5101. Consumer and Buyer Behavior. 3 Credit Hours.
Use of concepts from the behavioral sciences for identifying market segments, predicting customer response to alternative marketing strategies.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of B- in (MKTG 5001, (MKTG 5401 and MKTG 5402), (MKTG 5301 and MKTG 5302), MKTG 5303, or MKTG 5403)

MKTG 5103. Marketing Research: Techniques and Application. 3 Credit Hours.
Basic approaches to planning, collecting, analyzing, and communicating information from the marketplace. Techniques and applications for specific marketing areas.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of B- in STAT 5001 (may be taken concurrently)

MKTG 5104. Marketing Strategy. 3 Credit Hours.
Marketing Strategy provides an executive viewpoint of integrated marketing concepts, including: market analysis, segmentation, targeting, and positioning, and the 4Ps (product, price, promotion, and place). Students learn to apply both strategic and tactical elements of these marketing concepts, integrate these into financial models, and make decisions in realistic environments in order to maximize long term firm value. This course emphasizes skills and experiences in analyzing a business’ situation and formulating, implementing, and monitoring marketing strategy in a competitive environment. In particular, students will be able to select segments in which to compete, develop meaningful points of differentiation and positioning statements, think critically about product design, set prices in a variety of situations, deal with distribution and channel issues, and understand promotion strategies. There is a heavy emphasis on the link between marketing decisions and financial outcomes, as well as on communicating results of analysis to upper management. Note: Prior to fall 2017, the course title was “Managerial Decision Strategies in Marketing”.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of B- in (MKTG 5001 (may be taken concurrently), (MKTG 5401 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5402 (may be taken concurrently)), (MKTG 5301 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5302 (may be taken concurrently)), MKTG 5303 (may be taken concurrently), or MKTG 5403 (may be taken concurrently))
MKTG 5107. Product Management. 3 Credit Hours.
This course examines the analytical, decision making, and planning concepts and tools available to market, product, and brand managers. Specific decisions to be addressed include: product policy, policy formulation, the selection of product market strategies, new product development, product-line modification, and organizational implications. Emphasis is placed on discussion of cases and relevant readings. Because of the heavy emphasis on interaction, regular and frequent participation will be expected.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of B- in (MKTG 5001 (may be taken concurrently), (MKTG 5401 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5402 (may be taken concurrently)), (MKTG 5301 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5302 (may be taken concurrently)), MKTG 5303 (may be taken concurrently), or MKTG 5403 (may be taken concurrently))

MKTG 5108. Data and Financial Driven Marketing. 3 Credit Hours.
Data and Financial Driven Marketing provides students with an opportunity to analyze data and to recommend business plan implementations of product and commercialization tactics. The class provides a framework for choosing and applying a variety of data and financial analysis driven marketing techniques. The course covers basic methods for determining market level demand, forecasting and pricing models, promotions optimization allocation models, and other elements of ROI/ROMI analysis. The course utilizes CRM and other sources of marketing data base analysis to drive ROI/ROMI forecasts and then uses analyses to discriminate between strategic and tactical alternatives. This course also leverages financial analysis frameworks for customer identification/development, acquisition, satisfaction and retention and for strategy recommendations. Course concepts will be applied to a variety of marketing strategic decisions in both B-2-C and B-2-B situations, including segmentation, targeting, positioning, value proposition determination, new product development, branding, CRM/Loyalty programs and pricing strategies. Note: Prior to fall 2017, the course title was “Data-Driven Marketing.”

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of B- in (MKTG 5001 (may be taken concurrently), (MKTG 5401 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5402 (may be taken concurrently)), (MKTG 5301 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5302 (may be taken concurrently)), MKTG 5303 (may be taken concurrently), or MKTG 5403 (may be taken concurrently))

MKTG 5109. Mobile Marketing and Communications. 3 Credit Hours.
Mobile devices are becoming the main means of communication and have expanded beyond talking, texting, emailing, video streaming/sharing and surfing the web. Mobile now serves as an intimate, transactional and social connector to consumers - making it a highly desirable communication vehicle for marketers. In this course, students develop a strong knowledge of mobile marketing and communications and apply this new knowledge in the development of a mobile marketing communications plan. Marketing and communication strategies/plans are developed with mobile devices in mind first followed by all other communication vehicles i.e. OOH, direct mail, TV, radio, social, search, print, etc.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of B- in (MKTG 5001 (may be taken concurrently), (MKTG 5401 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5402 (may be taken concurrently)), (MKTG 5301 (may be taken concurrently) and MKTG 5302 (may be taken concurrently)), MKTG 5303 (may be taken concurrently), or MKTG 5403 (may be taken concurrently))

MKTG 5111. Customer Data Analytics. 3 Credit Hours.
This course introduces students to methods for analyzing data residing in firms' customer databases. It covers methods for creating profiles of customer segments based on their profitability to the firm, estimate individual customers' lifetime values, and demonstrate how this technique has been used by different organizations. The course also reviews statistical concepts and introduces and uses specialized statistical software, which will be used to conduct a variety of marketing analyses using actual customer databases. Students will acquire skills to construct traditional RFM (recency/frequency/monetary) analyses to maximize response to marketing campaigns. Using these traditional techniques as a foundation, students develop/build more sophisticated models to predict customer response, such as predicting whether a customer will respond to a particular marketing offer (e.g. a direct marketing, mobile marketing, direct mail, etc.). In addition, students construct more advanced models (e.g. logit models, CHAID) to maximize response to marketing campaigns and to compare the effectiveness of alternative models.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.
MKTG 5118. Marketing MS Capstone. 3 Credit Hours.
STAM, R&I and EMM students collaborate on a real-world business challenge in the market place. Each student plays a critical role in developing a comprehensive strategic marketing plan. EMM students will own responsibility for accurate segmentation, targeting, positioning, value generation and financial feasibility for a product or product line. STAM students will assess the effectiveness of the same brand's current advertising and communication strategies while guiding EMM and R&I on research that is actionable. R&I students will guide STAM and EMM on sound research planning, survey development, execution, data analysis and identify strategic outcomes. All three disciplines will work together to finalize a commercial grade marketing strategy and plan of tactics worthy of business management approval. All students learn to apply team leadership practices while developing a strategic marketing plan and gaining hands-on experience that can help accelerate a career in their respective fields. Success in this course requires playing an active role through a field research project that facilitates knowledge, skill, and competency in developing a company's product line and robust communication strategy and plan for implementation.

MKTG 5411. Marketing Management. 3 Credit Hours.
This course is designed to provide the student with the principles of marketing from the perspective of both buyers and sellers at both the macro (societal) and micro (firm) levels of analysis. Initially, we will address the evolution of market systems (macro level) and the role that marketing plays in bridging the gap between the production and consumption sectors of the economy. Subsequently, we will explore how firms (micro level) develop, price, promote and deliver goods and services to buyers and develop an understanding of how buyers acquire, consume and dispose of these goods and services. Everything that relates to a customer is part of the marketing domain, and the growing demands of stakeholders, news media and data analytics are changing the entire marketing landscape. The key to success for any organization (profit or non-profit) is to optimize how they create and deliver value. Marketing management extends far beyond promotion alone. Promotion is only one aspect of what marketing entails. In short, marketing is about enhancing perceived value of the organization and its products and services to increased willingness to pay vs. competitive offerings. Successful marketing management influences a company's desire and ability to enhance value generation, and thus increase perceived value.

MKTG 5604. Digital Marketing. 1.5 to 3 Credit Hour.
This course covers foundational marketing strategy topics within the context of digital marketing innovation. Through the course, we’ll look at market research, segmentation and targeting, value proposition development, branding strategies, product development, communications planning, pricing scenarios, and relationship management. Students will gain deeper knowledge of the what, why, and how of digital marketing including online listening and monitoring, search engine optimization, search ads, online promotions and email marketing. The identification of critical success factors and best practices are central to the course, as are methods for analyzing marketing effectiveness. The course focuses on both business-to-consumer (B2C) and business-to-business (B2B) markets.

MKTG 5605. Digital Innovation in Product Management and Branding. 1.5 to 3 Credit Hour.
Brands are challenged with meeting the demands of a digital consumer. Now more than ever it’s crucial for brands to adapt their current model and embrace marketing through use of data and technology. In this course you will learn how to leverage through the use of data and technology. Topics include developing a brand strategy, the content to support that strategy and how to communicate that content. In this course, students will learn the importance of digital to the overall marketing mix, build a digital brand strategy, develop content that meets the demands of targeted consumers, understand the various distribution platforms for your message and learn how to activate channels into your plans to maximize results.

MKTG 5617. Advanced Modalities. 3 Credit Hours.
This is a mandatory three-credit course in our MS degree program in Marketing Research and Analytics. The course will focus on understanding some of the emerging trends in the marketplace. The course will focus on readings and cases from Harvard Business Publishing. This course uses lectures, exercises, and cases. The lecture portion will introduce concepts, decision frameworks and stimulate discussion. The case assignments offer "real world" experience in analyzing problems and making critical decisions in uncertain environments. This course outlines how companies apply the disciplines of marketing including how social listening fits into an organizational structure, and how to properly respond to social media discussions. Uses industry-leading social media analytics platforms, such as Infegy Atlas, to develop social listening queues for analyzing how customers are talking about specific companies and their products or services. Integrates big data and machine learning and builds upon traditional modalities of data collection by delivering an in-depth understanding of the application of mobile and online techniques and tools in marketing research. Focus on creating and fielding a mobile-specific project, and understanding trends and likely future directions in mobile research. Introduction to online research communities and their most impactful use cases in the research and insights space. Using live hands-on projects focuses on the evolution from merely a faster, cheaper sample solution to a strategic platform for managing continuous conversations with hard-to-reach audiences.

MKTG 5618. Quantitative Pricing and Revenue Analytics. 3 Credit Hours.
The business world is full of examples where companies create great value for their customers, but fail to capture that value in their earnings. A common reason is a failure to integrate their value-creating activities with their pricing decisions. This course provides an in-depth, cross-functional look at the role of price in a firm's value proposition to customers. This course builds upon the foundation in Business Analytics. In previous courses, we saw that data by itself is useless and that it must be transformed into information in order to have value to decision-makers. This course will extend your understanding of the art and science of extracting information from data into increasingly complex and "real world" data. Specifically, we will cover extensions to regression, logistic regression, hierarchical modeling, model selection, and other topics spanning the process of building and evaluating models. In addition, we will practice drawing intuition and insight from models and effectively communicating that insight in a format that can help decision-makers to make better decisions.

MKTG 9001. Behavioral Science Seminar. 3 Credit Hours.
The purpose of this seminar is to provide a solid foundation for critical thinking in the area of consumer behavior. Consumer behavior is interdisciplinary; thus, you will be exposed to theories from a variety of fields. We will discuss the key behavioral theories and focus on how one should think about developing and testing a conceptual model. Further, the course will provide an insight into how to design clever field, lab and online experiments to test your hypotheses. This course is useful for those interested in getting an insight into the key drivers of consumer behaviors, to understand major areas of psychological science as applicable to how people and/or organizations make decisions or to learn more about how to develop and test conceptual models. Specific learning outcomes are: learn about some of the major areas of psychological science as applicable to how people behave; learn how to generate research ideas (relevant for your field) based on the discussed theories; learn how to develop and test conceptual models; improve your ability to present, explain and defend your ideas (and those of others) by giving short but compelling presentations in class; get an insight into how to choose a methodology for your research; and develop your ability to professionally respond to other scholars (and critics) in a tactful but confident manner.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

MKTG 9002. Seminar on Behavioral Research in Marketing. 3 Credit Hours.
The major objective of this course is to provide broad coverage of research that has emerged from (largely) psychological approaches to consumer behavior. Among the issues discussed are how people attend to information, how such information is related to prior knowledge, how knowledge guides judgments, how people form attitudes, how people respond to persuasion, how they make decisions, and how emotions affect consumer behavior. The readings cover both classic papers in consumer behavior as well as recent, state-of-the-art research. Thus, you will have a good idea of how the field has developed over the last few decades as well as where it is headed. The emphasis of the course will be on making you strong conceptual thinkers. You will develop critical, analytical, and integrative skills necessary for the conduct of behavioral research. Therefore, it is important for each student to come to class prepared to discuss her/his thoughts about the main ideas, strengths, contributions, and shortcomings of all of the assigned articles.

MKTG 9006. Empirical Modeling in Marketing. 3 Credit Hours.
This is a seminar-based class designed to introduce doctoral students to advanced empirical models and estimation methods. This class addresses models and methods such as brand choice models, hidden Markov models for customer targeting, times series VARX model, marketing mix response model and optimization, machine learning for unstructured text/audio/image data, and others.

Level Registration Restrictions: Must be enrolled in one of the following Levels: Graduate.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.
MKTG 9011. Proseminar in Marketing. 1 to 3 Credit Hour.
The Marketing PhD Pro-seminar provides doctoral students with an opportunity to learn about the range of academic research in marketing, and about marketing academic careers. Through critiques of academic research articles and discussions with other students and multiple faculty members, students will gain insights into research process, and the expectations of the marketing academic community. The course assignments and discussions help to build student research capability, and support student development of a research paper proposal on a topic of the student's choice.
