About the Program

The Master of Public Policy (MPP) degree provides training for individuals who seek public service careers in government or in private and nonprofit organizations that work on a continuous basis with legislatures and government agencies. The MPP curriculum provides students with the technical and analytical skills to be able to develop and assess proposed public policies and evaluate the effectiveness of programs and activities that governments at the federal, state and local levels undertake. The MPP also develops students' appreciation for the political and administrative contexts in which issues reach the policy agenda and policies are formulated, adopted, implemented and evaluated.

Time Limit for Degree Completion: 3 years; part-time students may apply for extensions, if needed

Campus Location: Center City for in-person instruction or Online with a combination of asynchronous and synchronous evening components

Full-Time/Part-Time Status: Students complete the degree program through classes offered after 5:00 p.m. The degree program can be completed on a full- or part-time basis.

Interdisciplinary Study: Courses are taken in Economics, Geography and Urban Studies, Political Science and other disciplines as needed. Students may also pursue the MPP as a dual degree with the Master of Public Health (MPH). Applicants for the dual degree must apply to each program separately and should consult the MPP website for further details.

Areas of Specialization: Students use their electives to specialize in a specific policy area or skill set.

Job Prospects: Students in the MPP program plan to seek entry-level jobs in government agencies as civil servants or in private and nonprofit organizations that work with federal, state and local governments, or may already have experience in government, private or nonprofit organizations and seek training and credentials to further develop their careers.

Non-Matriculated Student Policy: Prior to applying for admission, students sometimes want to take courses as non-degree students. Students are permitted to take up to 9 credits on a non-matriculated basis. If admitted to the program, students may have that coursework, with a grade of "B" or better, apply toward the MPP degree. Individuals who wish to take courses as non-matriculated students must first obtain the approval of the Director of the MPP program to determine if the individual stands a reasonable chance for admission to the program. Next, the prospective student must visit the Office of Continuing Studies with transcripts from all institutions attended, including the one that conferred the undergraduate degree, to be enrolled in the coursework.

Financing Opportunities: MPP students are not eligible for departmental assistantships, but may apply for a limited number of partial scholarships available from the program.
