

Graduate Certificate: English Language Teaching

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION AND HUMAN DEVELOPMENT

Learn more about the graduate certificate in English Language Teaching.

About the Certificate

The graduate certificate in English Language Teaching equips students with a foundational understanding of language structure and development as well as strategies for teaching and working with English language learners beyond the K-12 classroom in the United States. Please note that this certificate does not lead to teacher certification and, therefore, is not intended for teacher education students. Teaching English in K-12 classrooms in the United States requires state certification and, in Pennsylvania, a Pennsylvania Program Specialist: ESL Certificate. If you are enrolled in a teacher education program leading toward Pennsylvania Instructional I certification or currently hold this certification, please review the Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) M.S.Ed. program.

Grounded in a socio-cultural perspective, the program provides firsthand practical experience to build language teaching skills, including lesson planning/delivery, curriculum development, and assessment. Upon completion, students find themselves knowledgeable of the cultural, social, and political complexities of language education, its learning, and use, and are able to skillfully draw on this awareness in a broad range of international, professional, and teaching contexts. This program is ideal for those who want to develop a solid foundation for teaching English to non-native speakers and can serve as a critical pathway to the master's program in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL).
