

Graduate Certificate: New Product Development

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

Learn more about the graduate certificate in New Product Development.

About the Certificate

The innovative graduate certificate in New Product Development is designed for working engineering professionals. Students gain critical career skills while learning about design thinking principles, the marketing of technological products, and the challenge of producing a reliable pipeline of innovations beyond a single breakthrough. Additionally, students are educated in the engineering management principles required for leadership in new product development. This certificate can be "stacked" along with other graduate certificates and an integrative capstone project to earn the Master of Engineering (MEng) degree.

Campus Location: Online

Full-Time/Part-Time Status: The graduate certificate can be completed on a part-time basis.
