Fox School of Business and Management

Since 1918, Temple University’s Fox School of Business and Management has built a distinguished tradition of preparing business leaders, professionals, and entrepreneurs for successful careers.

The Fox School strives to deliver innovative, entrepreneurial programs. With facilities that provide access to market-leading technologies, the school fosters a collaborative and creative learning environment. Coupled with its leading student services, the school works to ensure that its graduates are fully prepared to enter the real-world job market.

The Fox School's knowledge-creating research faculty afford it the flexibility and responsiveness to address the needs of industry and generate courses and programs in emerging fields of study. Its significant influence on business education is demonstrated through its emphasis on experiential learning, including the Fox Management Consulting practice, a required MBA consulting experience that places students in the real world of business where they can open doors for future generations of Fox graduates.
