Learn more about the graduate certificate in Organizational Leadership.

About the Certificate

Organizations need strong leaders who:

- internalize how individuals, groups and organizations function;
- embrace diversity, equity, inclusion and justice as part of their practices; and
- enable teamwork, both as a colleague and team member and as a leader.

Our graduate certificate in Organizational Leadership is designed to equip rising professionals with the ability to influence success both for individuals and for the organization through practical leadership skills.

Courses include overviews of various leadership content areas, as well as a choice of elective in the additional areas of negotiation, communication and strategic leadership. All courses are delivered online and include virtual classroom meetings with a Fox School faculty member and student-classmates. Rigorous hands-on courses are taught by faculty who are leaders in their fields and businesspeople who have managerial and leadership experience. Participants also have the option to transfer credits earned into a Fox graduate degree program, such as the Human Resource Management MS.

The Organizational Leadership certificate program is appropriate for:

- individual contributors who seek a leadership role, and
- general managers who would like to develop their leadership skills.

Full-Time/Part-Time Status: The graduate certificate can be completed on a part-time basis. NOTE: International students may not be eligible to apply for a student visa based on admission to the certificate program. Please contact the Fox School's admissions advisor for more information.
