

Graduate Certificate: Health Justice and Bioethics

LEWIS KATZ SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

About the Certificate

The Health Justice and Bioethics graduate certificate program is designed for individuals confronting, or who anticipate confronting, health inequities in their work and are seeking specialized training in understanding and analyzing the ethics, values and value conflicts relevant to the urban setting. Students in the certificate program gain practical skills, theoretical orientations and resources to deliver better care. They are prepared to be innovators in research, care delivery, and policy and advocacy work.

The Health Justice and Bioethics certificate program is a viable option for those who seek additional bioethics training but are unable to fully commit to the master's program or who wish to explore the field before applying to the MA program. Students who earn the graduate certificate have one year after being awarded the certificate to apply for the MA program and, if accepted, all certificate credits can be applied to the master's degree.

Time Limit for Certificate Completion: 4 years

Campus Location: Health Sciences Center

Full-Time/Part-Time Status: The graduate certificate can be completed on a part-time basis. NOTE: International students may not be eligible to apply for a student visa based on admission to the certificate program. Please contact the certificate's senior advisor for more information.

Non-Matriculated Student Policy: Non-matriculated students may take up to 9 credits of coursework before applying to the graduate certificate program. Credit toward a subsequent degree program at Temple University is limited to 9 credits. However, if the student completes the Health Justice and Bioethics graduate certificate program, all 14 credits required to earn the certificate are applied to the MA in Health Justice and Bioethics.
