LAT 1001. Latin 1. 4 Credit Hours.

Latin was the language of commerce, government, and the arts in much of Europe and the Mediterranean from antiquity until the early modern period. One year of Latin instruction will allow students to read the speeches, documents, and histories of the ancient Romans, from the grand oratory of the late Republic to the martyr accounts of early Christians. This course, combined with 1002, will introduce grammar, vocabulary, and word forms, and lead students through readings of increasing difficulty until they are prepared for authentic Latin texts. Through the textbook and the ancient authors, students will be introduced to the peoples and places of the Roman world.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of C- in (LAT 1002 or 'EXMPT' in LCLA)

LAT 2002. Latin 4. 3 Credit Hours.

Students move on from prose to selections from the wide world of Latin poetry. In this course, students will not only read works such as Ovid's Metamorphoses (our primary source for many myths) or Vergil's Aeneid (an epic about the foundation of Rome by a Trojan hero) but will learn about the history of such literature and the contexts in which it was composed.

Repeatability: This course may not be repeated for additional credits.

Pre-requisites: Minimum grade of C- in LAT 2001.

LAT 3002. Readings in Latin Literature II. 3 Credit Hours.

In this course, students will read from a rotating selection of Latin genres, including epic, history, oratory, drama, love elegy, and the novel. Usually concentrating on a single author, this course prepares students for advanced critical study of Latin texts by expanding their knowledge of historical contexts and modern scholarship. After completion of this course, students may pursue graduate study or a career in Latin instruction.
