

Diversity and Inclusion Certificate

Overview

The Certificate in Diversity and Inclusion is offered by the Department of Psychological Studies in Education. Students who earn this certificate will be able to negotiate issues of power in a variety of settings, and will be positioned to act as advocates and organizers for people who have been systemically marginalized based on a variety of socially constructed characteristics including race, socioeconomic status, disability, immigration status and ethnicity. A certificate in Diversity and Inclusion enables and empowers our students to be leaders in both public and private sectors. Requirements of the certificate include four three-credit courses, and a comprehensive reflective paper.
