Ideal for both traditional undergraduates as well as adult students already in the professional environment, the Business Management major teaches students how to lead in business and work with others effectively, efficiently, and profitably regardless of the organization's size or industry sector. Business Management majors have many opportunities to network, meet business leaders, learn through internships, and understand the intricacies of the ever-evolving industry. Business Management courses provide theoretical and practical skills in a wide range of areas including change management, intrapreneurship, applicable technologies, communication, research, management, and supervisory skills.

Students are encouraged to join a Fox student professional organization that meets their interests and to explore a minor or certificate program in addition to their major. Courses taken for the major will not also count for a minor or certificate.

Online BBA Program

The Business Management major is available as an online BBA degree completion program designed for new and continuing students. Please visit the Online BBA web site for program and admission information.

Minors

Corporate Social Responsibility Minor

Open to business or non-business students.

The Corporate Social Responsibility Minor is for students who want to understand and be part of a growing movement to use business as a force for social and environmental good. The courses in the Minor emphasize that the traditional stockholder-primacy model of business is insufficient and even harmful for communities and our ecosystem, and that a multi-stakeholder model of business is more commensurate with societal expectations that businesses should contribute to solving the large social and environmental problems of our day. Businesses today are setting goals and measuring impact in terms of their effects on people and planet as well as profit, and the Minor encourages students to explore the ways that they might contribute in their careers to this emerging Triple Bottom Line.

Requirements for this minor must be completed prior to graduation. Courses cannot be used to meet minor requirements if already used to meet the requirements for a major or a different minor.

Sales Minor

Open to business students only.

Augment your business degree with skills and expertise in sales, persuasion, negotiation, marketing, and customer relationship management. Applicable to any business major, skills and learning from the Fox School Sales minor align with personalized career strategies and allow Fox students to differentiate themselves in a distinctive and relevant way to prospective employers.

Requirements for this minor must be completed prior to graduation. Courses cannot be used to meet minor requirements if already used to meet the requirements for a major or a different minor.

4+1 Master of Education Degree (M.Ed.)

The 4+1 Master of Education (M.Ed.) program is designed for students who are interested in pursuing a Master of Education while completing the Bachelor of Business Administration (B.B.A.) in Business Management program requirements. After completion of the programs, students earn a B.B.A. degree and an M.Ed. in Business, Computer & Information Technology Education (BCITE) or Marketing Education (ME), and a Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Instructional I Teaching Certificate in BCITE or ME. There is an application process. The deadline to apply is June 15th for fall admittance. For more information please contact:

HRM 3507. Intrapreneurship in the 21st Century. 3 Credit Hours.

You may identify a great opportunity for your organization to improve its products, services, sustainability, or treatment of employees or other stakeholders. Or you may see ways for your organization to adapt to threatening external events. Developing good ideas for change is only part of the solution. The most challenging aspect of change may lie in convincing your organization to act on your ideas. This course focuses on the challenges in implementing change in organizations, and overcoming these challenges - in other words, how to be an effective intrapreneur. Topics addressed include managing in all directions: downward, upward, and "sideways," personal assessment of strengths and weaknesses in ability to effect change, and organizational culture and reward systems that facilitate change. Coursework includes a hands-on project in which students propose a change initiative in a real-world organization.

HRM 3903. Honors - Management, Theory & Practice: From the Locker Room to the Board Room. 3 Credit Hours.

Whether a pick-up game at the local rec. center or a nationally-televised Final Four dream match-up, the game of basketball provides an ideal context for examining group dynamics, ethics, and motivation in organizations. For example, in basketball, the number one draft pick is only as dominant as the teammates (s)he electrifies. Think Michael Jordan and the notorious Chicago Bulls of the 1990s. Likewise, in a corporation, the CEO is only as effective as the top management team (s)he hand-selects and mentors to success. Ball hogs, showboaters, and cheap foulers can disrupt a basketball team's rhythm in much the same way that crooks, arbitrageurs, and balance sheet cheats can impact the bottom line. In this course students will explore - directly and metaphorically - some of the tenets of basketball as they relate to the theory and practice of management in organizations.

HRM 3904. Honors, The Leadership Experience: Leading Yourself, Leading Change, Leading Communities. 3 Credit Hours.

Leadership is a hot topic in social sciences, management, and popular culture. Ask ten people "what makes a good leader?" and you might get ten different answers. Our subject is to explore leadership as a discipline, or as scholars. More specifically, as current Honors students, you represent our future leadership. To effectively lead, having a basic understanding of the core tenets and theoretical foundations is important, but insight into your strengths and capabilities as a potential leader is essential. Thus, this course will provide you with foundational knowledge on core principles of leadership. More importantly, this course will focus on reflection, assessment, and development on the core skill sets required of effective leaders. Finally, you will be challenged to leverage your unique strengths in a team setting to enact and inspire change within your community.

HRM 4597. Critical Skills for Effective Managers. 3 Credit Hours.

The purpose of this course is to bring together Human Resource Management (HRM) knowledge and skills learned in a final, capstone experience to make the student a more effective manager. Students will take a hands-on approach to assessing and improving their self-awareness, interpersonal and teamwork skills. The course will also test skills learned in other core business school courses such as your ability to identify problems, gather and analyze data to understand the problem, to develop alternative courses of action, and implement it. Because this is a writing intensive course, there will be several individual writing assignments that you will have the opportunity to draft, receive feedback and re-draft to improve your writing skills, as well as a group project. NOTE: Students cannot receive credit for this course if they have passed HRM 3502. Students must earn a grade of C- in this course if they are using it to fill the writing intensive course requirement for their degree.
