

Film and Media Arts BA with Screen Studies Concentration

Overview

The Department of Film and Media Arts offers both the Bachelor of Arts (BA) and Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) in Film and Media Arts (FMA). The FMA program focuses on the development of creative expression and technical skills in film, video, audio, digital media, and new technologies, and the theoretical understanding of media and culture. The program recognizes and explores the creative tension between individual expression and the social, political and economic forces that shape culture at large through the creation and study of film, video and new media.

Students are trained in developing meaningful content as well as craft, theory and practice. In learning independent and mainstream approaches to production and theory, graduates will be prepared to develop their own independent productions and to assume a creative role in the motion picture, television and media industries.

Initially students declare either the Bachelor of Arts in Film and Media Arts or the Bachelor of Arts in Film and Media Arts with an optional Concentration in Screen Studies. In the spring of their sophomore year (60 credits), students may apply to enter one of three upper-level optional BFA concentrations in Directing, Media Arts or Screenwriting or one of three upper-level optional BA concentrations in Cinematography, Producing or Post Production.

The Bachelor of Arts in Film and Media Arts with an optional Concentration in Screen Studies is a liberal arts degree that allows students to study in depth the aesthetics, history and cultural significance of moving-image media. It draws upon the fields of cinema studies and humanities-based disciplines of media studies and media arts theory, while also encouraging students to approach screen cultures from neighboring disciplines, such as cultural studies, area studies, art history or visual studies.

Students who are interested in declaring a concentration in Screen Studies may do so at any time; please see an academic advisor for assistance. We encourage students from all disciplines to consider Screen Studies as a double major.

Los Angeles Study-Away Program

The Department of Film and Media Arts offers a department-run study-away academic and internship program in Los Angeles every semester. Students may apply to attend in fall, spring and summer of their junior and senior years. They may complete an online course, FMA 2670 with the topic Hollywood Head Start, before attending the Los Angeles Program, which may reduce program costs. Students interested in this option should apply to the Los Angeles Program through the Study-Away Office.

Other Internships and Special Programs

FMA has an extensive internship program throughout the year in Philadelphia. Additionally, many organizations in New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Washington, D.C. provide regular opportunities for student professional internships. Temple University offers Temple-run special programs for study and research in Rome and Tokyo.

Bachelor of Arts in Film and Media Arts with Concentration in Screen Studies

Summary of Requirements for the Degree

The Bachelor of Arts degree may be conferred upon a student majoring in Film and Media Arts with a concentration in Screen Studies by recommendation of the faculty and upon satisfactory completion of a minimum of 121 credit hours. Students must complete:

1. University requirements:
 - New students are required to complete the General Education (GenEd) curriculum.
 - All students must take a minimum of two writing-intensive courses. The specific writing-intensive courses required for this major are listed below and identified with the code "WI".
2. No more than 21 FMA credits can be transferred to the major.
3. A student must earn a grade of "C-" or better in all Film and Media Arts courses that count towards the degree.
4. Students may take up to 8 internship credits in Film and Media Arts.
5. Students may count a maximum of 66 FMA credit hours toward the 121 credit hours required for the degree.
6. As noted below, students in the Screen Studies concentration must fulfill a foreign language requirement in addition to the FMA coursework and general university requirements.
