Licensure/Certification

Registration as a Horticultural Therapist serves as a voluntary indicator of commitment to the professional standards of horticultural therapy. The registration process is administered by the American Horticultural Therapy Association (AHTA). Registration ensures that professional competencies have been achieved based on the verification of standardized academic requirements, professional training, and commitment to a professional code of ethics.

Temple University's Undergraduate Certificate in Horticultural Therapy meets the educational requirements for registration with the AHTA. In addition to the program's coursework, graduates must also become a member of AHTA at the Associate level; have a baccalaureate degree in horticulture with a concentration in horticultural therapy or an equivalent degree; complete horticulture coursework as outlined by AHTA; and successfully complete a 480-hour internship in horticultural therapy or meet the work experience criteria defined by AHTA.
